Re: Arts and Sciences Program Proposals from the Arts and Humanities Division

Arts and Sciences is pleased to submit the following programs from the Arts and Humanities Division to the Office of Academic Affairs for conversion from quarters to semesters. The programs have been approved by the faculty members and chair of the originating unit, and reviewed and approved by the divisional advisory panel, a subcommittee of the ASC Committee on Curriculum and Instruction (CCI), and the full CCI. The vote for approval of all programs at the full CCI was unanimous.

Arts and Sciences General Education (GE) Program: The GE program for untagged B.A. and B.S. degrees in Arts and Sciences was approved by the Council on Academic Affairs on May 26, 2010, after receiving approval from the Arts and Sciences Faculty Senate. All the programs presented here follow the approved GE program.

College of Arts and Sciences Transition Policy: The College of Arts and Sciences is committed to the principles outlined in the university’s Pledge to Undergraduate Students. Each unit has a plan on how best to assist its majors and minors through the transition. And the Arts and Sciences Academic Advising Services will advise students on how to transition their GE program. Dual advising is the existing process used in Arts and Sciences and will continue under semesters.

Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

- Students acquire a broad understanding of the basic areas of linguistics
- Students strengthen critical analysis and problem solving skills
- Students further develop skills of oral and written expression
- Students understand about the relationship between language and society
- Students understand how new knowledge is created through research
- Students learn potential career paths for linguistics majors

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? Yes

Does the degree program or major have an assessment plan on file with the university Office of Academic Affairs? Yes

Summarize how the program’s current quarter-based assessment practices will be modified, if necessary, to fit the semester calendar.

Majors are assessed by the Linguistics Undergraduate Curriculum Committee annually through (1) graduating student exit surveys, (2) course entry and exit surveys, (3) internship reports and evaluations, (4) quarterly review of classes and (5) tracking student participation in research forums, internships, and other academic-related activities. The Undergraduate Program Coordinator collects relevant data at the end of each school year to evaluate achievement of the program's learning goals. This information is provided to the Department Chair that summer, and together with the UPC, this data is shared in the fall with department faculty in a designated faculty meeting. This method of assessment will remain unchanged during semesters.

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Pre-Major

Does this Program have a Pre-Major? No

Professor Larry Krissek
Chair, Arts and Sciences CCI
Re: Major in Linguistics

Dear Professor Krissek:

The CCI’s Arts and Humanities 2 subcommittee met on December 7, 2010, to review the semester conversion plan for the major in Linguistics submitted by the Department of Linguistics. The major was recently revised (May, 2009) and the semester conversion follows this revision with a couple of minor changes, which were moving one course (LING 4000, previous LING 601) from an elective pre-requisite into the major, and an increase from nine 5-hour quarter courses to ten 3-hour semester courses. There are two tracks in this major (A and B). These do not appear on the student’s transcript. Track A is general linguistics, and Track B is for students intending to go to graduate school in this area. Track B is more structured and requires one more course in the major (LING 4780 Undergraduate Research Seminar) and an additional analytic pre-requisite.

The committee felt that the overall plan was sound but requested a few additions, clarifications, and corrections, the most important of which were:

- That the letter from chair outline the procedure used in the department to revise the major for semesters.
- That the difference between tracks A and B be explained.
- That the hours in Track A be increased from 27 to 30.
- That the pre-requisite course in advanced foreign language specify that it must be taught in the language.

The remaining changes were mostly typos and minor corrections (e.g., specifying that linguistics courses in the major be at the 2000 level or higher, minimum grade C- rather than C+).

The committee reviewed the revised major at its meeting on Jan 6, 2011, and voted unanimously to recommend forwarding it for the next step in the approval process.

Sincerely,

Wm. Mitchell Masters

College of Arts and Sciences  The Graduate School

Dear Larry and Elliot,

The Department of Linguistics has completed its proposal for semester versions of its programs: BA, Minor, MA, PhD. The Arts and Humanities Disciplinary Advisory Panel within the College of Arts and Sciences reviewed and approved all programs.

Bachelor of Arts in Linguistics: The last revision and approval by CAA to the undergraduate program in Linguistics was on May 6, 2009. The quarter-based degree is a minimum of 45 credit hours with 10 credit hours of pre-requisites, and its semester-based version is 30 credit hours with the same pre-requisites of 6 credit hours: a pre-requisite course in LING 2000 or 2000H of 3 credit hours, and a foreign language course beyond the GE, a 2000-level course of 3 credit hours. The most significant change to this major is they are no longer allowing LING 4000 (formerly 601) as a choice for a pre-requisite, and instead have moved this course into the core requirements for the major. The only other major change is the quarter version required 9 courses, and the semester version is requiring 10 courses. The major is retaining its quarter practice of two tracks: Track A and Track B. Track A addresses a broad range of linguistics topics and Track B focuses on preparation for graduate school and requires an additional course and pre-requisite. Both are non-transcriptable. The Transition Plan identified the individualist nature of advising that Linguistics has historically provided for its approximately 150 majors, and addresses how it will continue this practice in the future. Please note that the BA in Linguistics has an assessment plan on file with OAA, confirmed October 15, 2010.

Minor in Linguistics: Like the BA, the Minor in Linguistics remains basically unchanged. The quarter-based degree was 25 credit hours and its semester-based version is 15 credit hours with a change from one core course to two core courses and a reduction from three to two courses in the electives category, and retaining its introductory course requirement. Since the minor program is a course-to-course translation, the department has laid out a clear transition plan for achieving the minor.

BA/MA Dual-Degree in Linguistics: This program has been terminated (please note it was not able to be put into PACER, and therefore does not show up in PACER). After much review, and consultation with students in the current BAMA program, with faculty and advisors, the department decided to revise the MA program and completely do away with the BA/MA.

We are sending these programs forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at the Arts and Sciences Committee on Curriculum and Instruction.
Master of Arts in Linguistics: The MA in Linguistics is completely re-envisioned with the change from three tracks: 1) students in the BA/MA program, 2) students working toward their PhD, 3) students entering the MA only program, to one comprehensive track. The requirements for entry into the program have been codified and a thesis is required of all students.

PhD in Linguistics: The PhD in Linguistics was last revised in 2009 when it modified its core offerings. In the semester version of the PhD, they have further refined the core requirements, requiring the same four core courses of all of their doctoral students. Beyond that, the program remains unchanged. In addition, they have added nine new graduate seminars/courses.

We are sending these programs forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at The Graduate School.

The courses that are specific to all of the programs are listed under Linguistics in PACER and have been advanced along with the program forms. All programs from Linguistics have the approval of Arts and Humanities. If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call or email me at 292-5727 or williams.1415@osu.edu.

Thank you for your consideration of these proposals,

Dear Office of Academic Affairs:

The information in this letter lists all current programs in The Department of Linguistics, summarizes unit-level review processes for programs and course conversion, and describes processes used for continued review and evaluation of Linguistics courses and programs. The Linguistics Department’s Pattern of Administration does not require department approval to changes in any programs, although we traditionally have sought faculty approval for changes in the graduate programs. Changes in undergraduate programs are at the discretion of the chair or chair’s delegate.

Programs. We are submitting a proposal that reduces the number of programs from five to four.

Current linguistics programs include:
1. PhD Program
2. MA Program
3. Combined BA/MA Program
4. Undergraduate Major
5. Undergraduate Minor

Proposed programs include:
1. PhD Program
2. MA Program
3. Undergraduate Major
4. Undergraduate Minor

Converted Programs. The Combined BA/MA program has been eliminated and the MA program has been modified so that a single MA program is proposed that requires the same admission, course, and completion requirements for all students. The rationale for this is described in more detail in the MA Program Conversion submission. The Undergraduate Major has been modified. There are two changes to the Major that include a newly developed undergraduate course, “Semantics”, as an option for a core elective and inclusion of an already existing 4000-level introductory linguistics class as a core requirement. The PhD program has not been modified. However, we are proposing new graduate-level seminars that have been taught in a modified form. These courses are listed in the PhD Program submission. The Undergraduate Minor has not been modified.
Unit Level Review Processes for Semester Conversion. I have overseen the entire conversion process and developed a course of action to ensure a smooth transition. This plan included assigning department members to working groups, establishing course and program conversion goals, and developing a timeline for work to be completed. Faculty member Dr. David Odden, is the departmental liaison and reports information directly to me and to Dr. Julia McGory, the undergraduate program coordinator. Dr. McGory has collected course and program data from me, Dr. Odden, and department faculty and staff and has input these data into PACER.

In winter quarter, 2010, faculty, two graduate students, a BA/MA student and teaching staff were assigned to eight working groups that focused on conversion of doctoral courses in six specific linguistics content areas (Historical Linguistics, Psycholinguistics, Phonetics/Phonology, Computational/Corpus Linguistics, Syntax/Semantics/Pragmatics, Field Methods/Corpus Building), the MA programs (including the BA and MA degrees), and the Undergraduate Programs (including the minor and BA degrees). The goals of each committee were to determine: (1) Linguistics courses that must be taught to complete the program degree in the semester system; (2) the semester in which courses would be offered to allow for timely completion of the program degree; and (3) changes, if any, that should be made to the program and courses that allow for both (1) and (2) above.

Guiding principles were established in order to ensure that course content, teaching load, and sequencing of courses were taken into consideration while developing semester plans for each Linguistics program. Guiding principles included: (1) calculations for credit conversion; (2) recommendations for maintaining same course content; and (3) recommendations for teaching load.

Conversion planning operated within a specified timetable beginning with initial discussions at faculty meetings during the 2010 winter quarter followed by working group meetings during the end of 2010 winter and spring quarters. Committees provided final drafts of proposals prior to the end of winter quarter. At this time, materials were compiled and prepared for submission. During the summer quarter, program and course materials were put into the PACER system by Dr. Julia McGory.

To oversee the continued development of all programs before, during, and after semester conversion, departmental committees exist that will continue to monitor the success of Linguistics programs. The MA and PhD programs are reviewed by the Graduate Studies Committee. The undergraduate programs and courses are overseen by the Linguistics Undergraduate Curriculum Committee. Members include two faculty members, the Undergraduate Coordinator and the TA Coordinator. Each committee reports to the department chair who shares information with department faculty and staff at linguistics department meetings.

On behalf of the Department of Linguistics, I recommend for approval each of the four Linguistics Programs: the Linguistics Minor program, the Bachelor's of Arts program, the Master's of Arts program, and The Doctorate of Philosophy program.

Sincerely,

Dr. Elizabeth Hume
Department Chair
THE LINGUISTICS MAJOR PROGRAM
Bachelor of Arts Degree

This document includes the following:
1. Rationale
2. List of Semester Courses
3. Semester and Quarter Advising Sheets
4. Transition Policy

1. Program Rationale Statement

The Linguistics undergraduate program and courses continue to be overseen by the Linguistics Undergraduate Curriculum Committee. Members include two faculty members, the Undergraduate Coordinator and the TA Coordinator.

There have been three recent changes to the Linguistics Major Program. First, the Undergraduate Research Seminar (LING 699/ LING 4780) was removed as a requirement for non-honors Linguistics majors. In its place, non-honors majors are required to take an additional linguistics elective. This was approved by the Council on Academic Affairs on May 6, 2009. This change did not affect the total number of courses required for the non-honors major. Second, because the credit requirement for majors in the semester system is 30, LING 4000 (Introduction to Linguistics) has been included as a core requirement to take effect in autumn, 2012. The addition of this course results in an additional 3-credit course requirement for the BA in semesters. Third, we have developed a new undergraduate course, LING 4400, Semantics, which we have added to the Elective Core and Elective Courses. These latter two decisions were made on December 7, 2010 by the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee and is subject to approval by the Council of Academic Affairs during the program conversion process. Other than these three modifications to the curriculum, there are no major revisions to the linguistics major or to undergraduate course offerings, other than conversion-related renumbering. We do not expect there to be any significant changes in the frequency of offering or our ability to accommodate undergraduate students.

The Linguistics Major Program currently requires 45 quarter credit hours (9 courses) and will require 30 semester credit hours (10 courses, due to the addition of LING 4000 as a core course). There are two tracks that students may follow. These tracks are not transcriptable programs. Track A is designed to give students familiarity with a broad range of subject areas in linguistics. Students in this track take the minimum requirements for completing the BA degree. Track B is particularly appropriate for students interested in research who plan to go on to graduate school. As a means of promoting a deeper understanding of linguistics, Track B requires a sequence of two (typically) upper level courses in one subject area. Students choosing Track B take one course beyond the minimum program requirements.

2. List of Semester Courses

PREREQUISITE COURSE WORK

1. Introductory Course in Linguistics. One (3 credits) of the following:
(3 credits) LING 2000 Introduction to Language in the Humanities
(3 credits) LING 2000H Introduction to Language in the Humanities

2. Language Requirement to be satisfied before or while completing the BA requirements. These courses do not need to be satisfied before declaring the major. One (3 credits) of the following:

(3 credits) Advanced Foreign Language Class beyond the GE requirement (2000 level or above; spoken in the foreign language)
(3 credits) LING 4550 Introduction to Linguistic Field Methods*
(3 credits) LING 5551 Field Methods I*
*The field methods course can be used simultaneously to satisfy the prerequisite and major elective requirement.

MAJOR CORE COURSES (18 credits)

1. Required Core Courses
(3 credits) LING 4000 Introduction to Linguistics

Followed by each of the following core courses taken in any order:
(3 credits) LING 4100 Phonetics
(3 credits) LING 4200 Syntax
(3 credits) LING 4300 Phonology

2. Elective Core Courses. Two courses in two distinct areas from the following list. (6 credits)
Historical Linguistics:
(3 credits) LING 2901 Language Evolution and Language Change
(3 credits) LING 5901 Introduction to Historical Linguistics

Sociolinguistics:
(3 credits) LING 2602 Language and Social Identity in the U.S.

UNDERGRADUATE MAJOR IN LINGUISTICS
Semester Advising Sheet

Linguistics Advisor and Undergraduate Program Coordinator:
Dr. Julie McGory advisor@ling.osu.edu
Department of Linguistics website: http://www.ling.osu.edu/

Nothing characterizes the nature of humans more than the ability to use language. In linguistics, one studies languages; not to learn how to read, write, or speak them, but to understand how they work, how they change, how children learn them, and how they are used. Concern for the role of language in human life makes linguistics a humanistic discipline. However, since linguistics is concerned with the systematic explanation of facts about language, it is also a science.

The undergraduate program in linguistics permits a student to combine a broad spectrum of humanistic and scientific interests and to strengthen his/her analytic skills. The student is encouraged to explore with faculty the many relationships that linguistics has with other fields in order to discover the optimal program to meet his/her individual goals.

The Linguistics Major

There are two tracks in this major: Track A and Track B. Students are advised to complete one of these based on their academic goals and interests. These are not transcriptable programs. Each track will lead to a BA in Linguistics. Track A is designed to give students familiarity with a broad range of subject areas in linguistics. Track B is particularly appropriate for students interested in research who plan to go on to graduate school. As a means of promoting a deeper understanding of linguistics, Track B requires a sequence of two (typically) upper level courses in one subject area. In addition to these two tracks, undergraduates have the option of working with the undergraduate advisor to design a variant tailored to their particular interests. The Linguistics Major requires successful completion (with a grade of C- or higher) of 30 credit hours for Track A and 33 credit hours for Track B.

TRACK A (at least 30 credit hours, excluding prerequisites will lead to a BA in Linguistics.)

a. Prerequisite Course Work (6 credits) -- This requirement does not need to be satisfied before declaring the major.
   i. Introductory course in linguistics: 3 credits
      (3 credits) LING 2000 or LING 2000H

   ii. Language requirement -- to be satisfied before or while completing the BA requirements. This requirement does not need to be satisfied before declaring the major. One of the following: 3 credits
      (3 credits) Advanced foreign language beyond the GE requirement (2000 level or above; taught in the foreign language)
      (3 credits) Field Methods: LING 4550 or LING 5551
b. Major Core Courses
   i. Core Courses. Four required courses
      (3 credits) Introduction to Linguistics: LING 4000

      Followed by each of the following. These may be taken in any order:
      (3 credits) Phonetics: LING 4100
      (3 credits) Syntax: LING 4200
      (3 credits) Phonology: LING 4300

   ii. Elective Core Courses. Two courses in two distinct areas from the following list:
      (3 credits) Historical Linguistics: LING 2901 or 5901
      (3 credits) Sociolinguistics: LING 2602 or LING 2602H or LING 2603 or LING 5601
      (3 credits) Psycholinguistics: LING 2701 or LING 2701H or LING 5701
      (3 credits) Field Methods: LING 4550 or 5551 (may be used concurrently to satisfy the language prerequisite)
      (3 credits) Semantics: LING 4400 Semantics

c. Major Elective Courses
   Students following Track A in linguistics must take at least 12 hours of any linguistics course at the 2000 level or above not used to fill a requirement in a.i, b.i, or b.ii. These should be chosen in consultation with their major adviser. Elective courses will often complement an area of secondary interest for the student (often a minor or second major). A complete listing and description of linguistics courses can be found at: http://linguistics.osu.edu/courses.

e. Major Elective Courses

Students following Track B in linguistics must take at least 6 hours of any linguistics course at the 2000 level or above not used to fill a requirement in b.i, b.ii, c, or d. These should be chosen in consultation with their major adviser. These courses may be at any level. Students in Track B who are interested in graduate-level courses (6000- and 7000-level) may petition into these with the advice from the Undergraduate Studies Chairperson. A complete listing and description of linguistics courses can be found at: http://linguistics.osu.edu/courses. Total elective linguistic credit hours required will depend upon the two-course sequence selected (see above).

Nothing characterizes the nature of humans more than the ability to use language. In linguistics, one studies languages; not to learn how to read, write, or speak them, but to understand how they work, how they change, how children learn them, and how they are used. Concern for the role of language in human life makes linguistics a humanistic discipline. However, since linguistics is concerned with the systematic explanation of facts about language, it is also a science.

The undergraduate program in linguistics permits a student to combine a broad spectrum of humanistic and scientific interests and to strengthen his/her analytic skills. The student is encouraged to explore with faculty the many relationships that linguistics has with other fields in order to discover the optimal program to meet his/her individual goals.

The Linguistics Major
There are two tracks in this major: Track A and Track B. Students are advised to complete one of these based on their academic goals and interests. These are not transcriptable. Each track will lead to a BA in Linguistics. Track A is designed to give students familiarity with a broad range of subject areas in linguistics. 4. Transition Policy

Students who started the linguistics major in the quarter system and will complete the major requirements in the semester system will not experience a delay. Should any unexpected changes occur that affect student progress, substitutions of required courses will be possible. We expect there to be roughly 150 majors who will be affected by conversion. In order to assist these undergraduate students through the transition process, additional office hours will be devoted to individual advising sessions by the Linguistics Undergraduate Director and the Undergraduate Advisor. The Undergraduate Director will contact the honors majors and the Undergraduate Advisor will contact the non-honors majors at least annually to inquire and assist with potential transition-related concerns.

Prerequisite Coursework in the Linguistics Major Program has changed in that LING 4000, “Introduction to Linguistics” is no longer an option for the introductory coursework requirement in the semester system. Students will choose between LING 2000 or LING 2000H “Introduction to Language in the Humanities”. The total number of prerequisites has not changed, only the options. Students who declare a linguistics major prior to Autumn, 2012 may take LING 601/4000 as a prerequisite.

Major Course Requirements in the Linguistics Major Program have changed. Nine courses are required in the quarter system and ten are required in the semester system. This is due to a change in the core curriculum. LING 4000, “Introduction to Linguistics”, has been added to the core set of classes. Students who declare a linguistics major prior to Autumn, 2012 are not required to take LING4000 as a core course.

A sample program for a student beginning the academic program in the quarter system and completing additional years in the semester system is provided at the end of this document.

Program Transition Plan:

Students completing a Bachelor of Arts degree in Linguistics must complete the following courses. Completion of these courses (regardless of their quarter or semester status) with a grade of C- or higher will be used to determine completion of the Linguistics Major Requirement.

Prerequisites:

1. Introductory Linguistics prerequisite: All students are required to complete an introductory linguistic course. Students may choose to take either LING 201 or LING 201H; these are LING 2000 or LING 2000H in the semester system. Multiple sections of Ling 2000 will be offered during the Autumn and Spring semesters and LING 2000H will be offered once in the Autumn or Spring Semesters. Students who declare a linguistics major prior to Autumn, 2012 may substitute LING4000 as a prerequisite.

2. Language prerequisite: Students complete one foreign language course beyond the Arts and Humanities requirement (2000 level or above, spoken in the foreign language) or complete Linguistics Field Methods (this course can be used simultaneously to satisfy a major requirement). Field Methods is LING 550 in the quarter system; LING 4550 in the semester system.
Major Requirements:
1. Core Linguistics Courses: Students who declared linguistics as a major prior to Autumn, 2012 must complete three cores courses. These include LING 500 (Phonetics), LING 502 (Syntax) and LING 503 (Phonology). Students who declare linguistics a major in Autumn, 2012 or after are required to take four core courses. These are LING 4000, LING 4100, LING 4200 and LING 4300, respectively. Each core course will be taught twice each year, once in the Autumn semester and once in the Spring semester.

2. Elective Core Courses: The major requires that all students complete two additional core courses at the 200-level or above (2000-level or above in the semester system) from two separate areas. These include Historical Linguistics, Sociolinguistics, Psycholinguistics, Field Methods (and Semantics in the semester system). Each of these classes will be offered at least once in the Autumn or Spring semesters. If by chance a particular course is not offered during a preferred semester, the student should consult with the Undergraduate Advisor for additional options.

3. Elective Linguistics Courses: The major requires that all students complete four elective courses that align with the student’s interests. Students may choose among all undergraduate linguistics courses (not used for the core curriculum) that are 200-level or above; 2000-level or above in the semester system. The majority of these elective courses will be offered once each year, and many will be offered in both Autumn and Spring semesters. If by chance a particular course is not offered during a preferred semester, the student should consult with the Undergraduate Advisor for additional options.
