Dear Kay:

I am writing on behalf of Edward Adelson, Associate Executive Dean of the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences. Please find attached is a proposal for CAA consideration and action with revisions to the undergraduate Bachelor Art Education (BAE). The proposed changes to this major were approved by the College of the Arts Curriculum Committee on March 3, 2008, vetted by the Arts and Humanities Subcommittee of the ASC CCI on April 4, and approved by the ASC CCI on May 9, 2008 (a transmittal history of minutes is included.)

The revisions to the Art Education major are very closely related to the proposed revisions to the Art BF and BFA programs. These departments have worked very closely together on behalf of their students and deserve high praise for their efforts. In summary, these two departments have collaborated to streamline their majors so that students may flow seamlessly from BA and BFA in Art into the senior year BAE in Art Education. The revisions of these majors are reflective of the field, the interdisciplinary strengths of the department and the observations of the accrediting body of the National Association of the Schools of Art and Design (NASAD).

The BAE tagged degree is currently 191 credit hours, with 71 in the GEC and 120 in the major program. The revisions to the BAE reduce the total hours required for graduation with this major to 181, making the BAE the first tagged degree in the College of the Arts to reduce to 181 (65 in the GEC and 115 in the major). The major now not only allows for increased accessibility and transparency for BA/BFA students in Art interested in entering the field of Art Education, but also for transfer and returning students.

I am pleased to forward this proposal to CAA for its consideration, and stand ready to assist CAA in any way during its deliberation process.

Sincerely,

Kathleen M. Hallihan, Ph.D.

Subcommittee B considered the proposal from the Department of Art Education to modify their requirements for the Bachelor of Art Education (B.A.E.) degree at its meeting on April 4, 2008. After a thorough examination and a comprehensive discussion of the proposal the subcommittee voted unanimously to approve the revisions.

Proposed revisions:

1. Eliminate the requirement that two of the three Art Electives be Art 350 (Digital Image Manipulation) and Art 370 (Beginning Life Drawing). This allows the student to choose the three Art Electives as individual choices.

2. Add Art Education 255 (Engaging Visuality: The Power of Seeing and Being Seen) as an option for the GEC Art and Humanities course. Currently all students must take Art Education 160 (Art and Music since 1945) for this requirement. The addition of a second course for this requirement gives students an additional choice.

3. Add Art Education 367.03 (Criticizing Television) as an option for the GEC Second Level Writing course. Currently all students must take Art Education 367.01 (Ethnic Arts: A Means of Intercultural Communication) for this requirement. The addition of a second course for this requirement provides the students with an additional choice.

4. Eliminate Art Education 631 (Assessment in Art Education) (3 hours). The topics dealing with assessment in Art Education would be embedded in other courses, and specifically in Art Education 607 (Concepts in Planning Art Education).

5. Reduce the number of credit hours for Art Education 640 (Critical Dialogue about Art and Aesthetics) from five to three and change the course title to Critical Dialogue about Art. These changes reflect a more transdisciplinary approach to this topic that represents the current pedagogy in this field.

6. Change the title for Art Education 601 (Curriculum Design for Art History) to Conceptual Processes for Visual Culture as Curricula. This revision reflects changes in the field and a shift in the paradigms in the pedagogy and instruction of Art Education.

The net effect of these changes would be to increase student choice and reduce the number of hours required by the major by five hours.

The principal foci for discussion were:

1. The change in the relationship between the changes in the B.A.E. and the revised Art B.A. and B.F.A. degrees.
2. The changes in the hours required by the major.

3. The increase in the choices offered to students.

4. The paradigm changes that are occurring in the field.

Dear Ed,

The College of the Arts Curriculum Committee has reviewed and voted unanimously to support the Department of Art Education’s proposal to revise the requirements for the undergraduate Bachelor of Art Education (a tagged degree approved by OAA in May of 1990). We discussed the proposal with Professor Kevin Tavin, Chair of Undergraduate Studies in the Department of Art Education, during our ARTS CC deliberations on Monday, March 3, 2008, and we were pleased to unanimously support the Department of Art Education’s changes to the B.A.E. requirements.

The proposal was vetted and supported by the full faculty in the department, designed in close consultation with the Arts Advising Staff, and the Department of Art. As noted in the Department of Art’s cover letter, the Department of Art Undergraduate Studies Chair and the Department of Art Education Undergraduate Studies Chair met several times to streamline the two proposals so that their students may flow seamlessly from the BFA in Art into the senior year of the BAE in Art Education. This collaborative approach to educating the students toward a BAE in Art Education will facilitate students’ contact with the Department of Art Education from the first moment they step onto campus rather than the past experience of meeting with the department later in sophomore or junior year. The revisions are reflective of the field and new Undergraduate Studies leadership in both departments and the suggestions of the accrediting body of the National Association of Schools of Art and Design (NASAD).

The BAE tagged degree is currently 191 credit hours, with 71 in the General Education Curriculum and 120 in the major program. These will reduce to a total of 181, making the BAE the first tagged degree in the College of the Arts to reduce to 181. The 181 credit hours will be dispersed with 65 in the General Education Curriculum and 115 in the major program. The primary changes are described below:

- GEC reflects the revised GEC with the current/new categories and reduces the original 70 hour requirements to 65 by reducing the Social Science requirement from 15 to 10 to reflect the newly revised GEC requirements for this category. This is a total reduction of 5 credit hours in the GEC requirements.
• The department also added Art Education 255 and Art Education 367.03 as options for fulfilling the GEC requirements.

• The major requirements are reduced from 120 to 115: (a) retiring Art Education 631 (3 cr. hrs.) and instead, spreading the content of assessment across the core curriculum in art education, and (b) reducing Art Education 640, from 5 cr. hrs. to 3 cr. hrs., reflecting the state of the field and its progression beyond the Getty report in the 1980s. This is a total reduction of 5 credit hours in the major requirements.

• Additional revisions to the major program include allowing students to select their own electives in the Department of Art rather than prescribing “elective” course work. This will allow students to gain depth in an area and pursue interests in a particular art discipline.

• Change of title of Art Education 601 reflecting the change in course content as it reflects the field of art education.

• The changes will take place in Autumn 2008 for entering senior students in the program. The department foresees no difficulty with advising as the students enter the Department of Art Education as seniors in order to fulfill the final major requirements of the BAE and begin the licensure process. Art Education will retain 067 for its majors and 849 for Pre-Art Ed.

We thank you in advance for moving this proposal through the next appropriate steps, and look forward to its ultimate approval and implementation for fall of 2008. If you have questions about the proposal please feel free to contact me at 292-5171 or through email, mockabee.1415.

Thank you,

Transmittal History for Revision to Art Education BAE Major

ASC CCI- DRAFT Minutes
5-9-08

1. Art Education BAE Revision (Guests: Tavin, Harvey, Soave, Nelson)

Unanimously Approved

a. Introduction and Summary (Jay Hobgood, Chair Sub-B): Discussed on 4/4, see cover memo for summary of current and revised requirements. Contains additions and deletions of major courses to allow students greater flexibility (outlined in cover memo). Net effect reduces required hours by 5. This revision, as it is tied conceptually to the BFA/BA proposal, was approved with high favor by Sub-B in its alignment and transitional components which will benefit students.

b. Tavin: Potential BAE students complete a first year foundation program similar to BFA students. Later students select into Art Education field (this is a senior year degree, 5-year program that is a Master’s program, ending in licensure.)

c. Tavin: Art Ed course changes reflect changes based on paradigm shift in field, such as the emphasis on visual aspects of art and not just art history.

d. Q: Why is “Aesthetics” dropped from title 640 course? Current paradigm shift de-emphasizes a discipline-based holdover from 20 years ago. The new title helps emphasize other newer areas. Aesthetics are still included in the curriculum of the course, even though it has been dropped from the title.

e. Departments of Art and Art Ed have worked together enthusiastically and diligently to cooperate on this integration and committee feels they deserve to be commended for their efforts.

f. Q: What are the acceptance statistics like? 30-45 accepted applicants per year, of which 20-25 are undergraduates. The others are graduates. This gives students who do not get into BAE program first time around the chance to apply to the program again at the Master’s Level.

CCI Sub-Committee B – Unanimously Approved
4-4-08

1. Art BA/BFA and BAE Program Revision
   a. Context and history (Mockabee) see cover letter
      i. Current program has several disconnects between GEC requirements based on BA/BFA making transition into Art Ed and subsequent licensure process very difficult for students. Reaccreditation process suggested tiered review process and revisions based review of foundations course faculty.
ii. Wish to institute a group advising process
iii. 6 major revisions outlined on page 2 of proposal
iv. Sets forth stricter and more transparent guidelines for students’ portfolio review process

b. BA would not be a “default” degree but would rather be strengthened in both perception and rigor for students
c. Q: Transfers from other programs/institutions: Currently students are evaluated on product portfolio and prior coursework by academic advisory committee (foundational faculty and senior faculty) Transfers will be admitted as BFA and can choose BA option if they want
d. Q: Do students still have only two chances for admission to the BFA based on portfolio evaluation? The academic standards committee will be continually assessing students throughout their first two years so students who may need extra support or are potentially not well suited can be helped and/or guided toward better options
e. Incoming freshman wants to do a BFA: a “pre-Art” student is put in BFA track. After foundation courses, if necessary, student is removed from BFA track. Students can petition for reconsideration for BFA, a BA., or choose to have a minor – BA is not the default.
f. What are criteria of evaluation: there is a large rubric which is made available to students and are encouraged to attend portfolio clinics. Suggestion to make this information available in proposal
g. Suggestion (Lando) for (in the future) an on line survey course for potential transfer students (other 4 ASC colleges have such courses)
h. What is relationship between Art BA/BFA and Art Education BA? In Art Ed, you do not declare AE major until senior year. It is only a senior year department (and graduate degree department). Currently the BFA to BAE structure disadvantages students who wish to transfer into BAE. These two new proposals would align requirements and make the switch from BFA to BAE coherent and easily achievable for students.
i. Proposal results in a net drop of 10 credit hours (5 from GEC and 5 from major) bringing it down to 181 credits total.
j. Recommendation to remove “draft” watermark from the checksheets
k. Include withdraw form for 631 (outdated course based on assessment)
l. Course change request for 601 reflects new terminology in the field and as such did not require a syllabus submission

m. 640 white out “Teaching” in title of revised syllabus

ARTS CCC- Unanimously Approved
3-3-08

Art Ed (BAE)
  i. intro by Kevin- 3 major changes of the program
  ii. editing/revision recommendations:
(1) 640 change request: edit the syllabus insert academic misconduct statement, disability statement, grading scale; weekly schedule/topical outline on the revised syllabus
(2) title change of 601 - add a new syllabus
(3) reduce the Social Science from 15 to 10 credit hours- should include an explanation/clarification of why not include 367.02 because it is frequently asked
iii. great justification to go in line with the clusters
iv. Art (Rebecca Harvey) will write a statement to support this proposal to show inter-departmental collaboration
iv. 631 is still being taught, just not included in the program
v. How will the students in the program be affected? If this is approved for Au 08, the students are advised and prepared for this program change. Current students will not be affected significantly. Advising will ensure the students are informed and not affected by the curriculum change.

Proposal to Modify the Major Requirements for the BAE Program
The Department of Art Education, The Ohio State University

The following is a proposal to modify the major requirements for all Bachelor of Art Education (BAE) majors at The Ohio State University. We would like to implement these changes autumn quarter of 2008. The BAE is administered by the Department of Art Education within the College of the Arts.

The purpose of the proposed changes is to a) provide the BAE student with more flexibility in choosing art studio courses as part of the major area, b) to address ongoing self-study and assessment of program requirements in light of recent developments in art education theory and practice, and c) to comply with the new General Education curriculum requirements for the Bachelor of Arts (BA) that the McHale Report substantially endorsed and have been implemented by the College of Arts and Science (ASC). These last two areas will accommodate the reduction of the minimum hours required for the BAE degree from 191 to 181.

a) Art Studio Courses
The current BAE degree plan provides students with few elective choices from a narrow range of art studio courses. The faculty feels that the BAE degree program will be enhanced by allowing the student more individual choice for art studio classes. The BAE degree is designed for a student who wants to become a teacher of art, PreK-12. Therefore, the student should have both a breadth and depth of knowledge and experience in the area of visual arts. In order to achieve breadth, the BAE student will still be required to complete a series of art studio courses at both the 200 (foundations) and 300 level (post-foundations). The depth will now be enhanced by the ability of students to choose any three appropriate art studio courses as additional electives post-foundations.

Current post-foundations "art electives" for BAE Proposed post-foundations "art electives" for BAE

| Art & Tech (Art 350 Digital Image Manipulation) | Art Elective |
| Art Elective (Art 370 Beginning Life Drawing) | Art Elective |
| Art Elective | Art Elective |

b) Major Course Requirements
The current degree program requires all BAE students to take Art Education 160, Art and Music since 1945, as an Arts and Humanities course, and Art Education 367.01, Ethnic Arts, as the Second Level Writing course. The revised BAE program will add Art Education 255, Engaging Visuality, as a choice for an Arts and Humanities course, and Art Education 367.03, Criticizing Television, as a choice for the Second Level Writing. Both 255 and 367.03 are offered through the Department of Art Education, address the broader content of, and changes within the field of art education, permit the BAE student to have choices in Arts and Humanities and Second Level Writing, and are part of the new ASC Cluster, Media and Representation, beginning autumn 2008. Under the proposed curriculum, the current required courses (Art Education 160 and 367.01) will be available as choices for the BAE student. This change simply adds an additional course to each category to help reflect the broadening of content knowledge and transdisciplinary practices necessary for contemporary art education.

In addition, based on internal program evaluation and self-assessment, the proposed changes in the major requirements would retire Art Education 631, Assessment in Art Education, change the title and reduce the number of credits from five (5) to three (3) for Art Education 640, Critical Dialogue about Art and Aesthetics (revised title: Critical Dialogue about Art) and revise the title of Art Education 601 from Curriculum Design for Art History to Conceptual Processes for Visual Culture as Curricula.

After careful consideration of student evaluations, faculty concerns, and program aims and goals, the Department of Art Education Undergraduate and Licensure Committee determined that the teaching of assessment as a separate and discrete course in the BAE program was unhelpful for students, and created an intellectual and pedagogical dissonance between curriculum development and planning, and assessment implementation. The committee agreed that teaching students about the multiple and complex facets of assessment in Pre-K-12 art educational settings requires connecting assessment to curriculum planning in specific ways, and in a particular course that address curriculum. Currently, the issue of assessment in pre-K-12 schools is addressed in a separate course than curriculum planning. The proposed change in the BAE program would fold in the content of assessment directly into the courses that address curriculum theory and development, specifically Art Education 607, Concepts in Planning Art Education.

In the proposed curricular changes Art Education 640, Critical Dialogue about Art and Aesthetics would have its title revised to Critical Dialogue about Art, and be reduced from five (5) credits to three (3) credits (see syllabi in appendix A). This change reflects changes in the Department Mission Statement and movements in the field of art education toward a more transdisciplinary notion of visual culture and art theory. In the past, Art Criticism and Aesthetics were considered two of the four "disciplines of art education." This emphasis began over twenty (20) years ago and has since been modified, adapted, and transformed to embrace a more transdisciplinary approach to art theory, which extends well beyond "four domains." The revision of Art Education 640 reflects this change by focusing on art theory more generally, and its relationship to Pre-K-12 art education more specifically. The course would no longer need to focus on separate and often discreet "disciplines," thus allowing a broader curricular approach.
connection between and among the other BAE courses, as well as a more contemporary approach to understanding art and other forms of visual culture through its specific course content.

The last revision of requested in a major course is a change of course title for Art Education 601, from Curriculum Design for Art History to Conceptual Process for Visual Culture as Curricula. This revision reflects the change in discourse in the field, and a paradigmatic shift in pedagogy and instruction of art education. The primary course content will not be affected by this course title change. The current manifestation of the course addresses phenomena and processes for the teaching of art history and visual culture in K-12 schools. The course content has continued, and will continue, to expand and reflect the current state of art education.

c) GEC Reduction

The changes outlined above (in area b) allow the BAE program to comply with the new General Education curriculum requirements for the Bachelor of Arts (BA) that the McHale Report substantially endorsed, and that have been implemented by the College of Arts and Science (ASC). The retirement of Art Education 631 and the reduction of credits in Art Education 640 accounts for a total of five (5) credit hours reduced in the major area of the BAE. This would reduce the overall number of credits required for the BAE to 186. To accommodate further the reduction of the minimum hours required for the BAE degree from 191 to 181, the Department of Art Education supports reducing the number of credits in the area of Social Science, from the current fifteen (15) credits to ten (10). This reduction reflects the new requirements of the BA curriculum, under Breadth Areas, were students must complete two (2) courses in the social sciences rather than three (3). In the view of the Department of Art Education, the proposed BAE curriculum in total, including the GEC and major course requirements, constitute curricular depth and breadth, balancing strength in general education and strength in major coursework and experiences. In the spirit of "McHale," this overall reduction of the BAE to 181 credits responds to the needs of the University, ASC, the College of the Arts, the Department of Art Education, and, most importantly, our students.

Below is a brief outline of the proposed changes to the BAE

• Remove restrictions on two “elective” art areas
• Add Art Education 255 and 367.03 as choices for the GEC requirements
• Retire Art Education 631
• Reduce the credits from 5 to 3 in, and change title of Art Education 640
• Change title of Art Education 601
• Reduce the credits from 15 to 10 in Social Science

Revising Art Education 640, Critical Dialogue about Art and Aesthetics from five (5) credits to three (3) credits, revising its title to Critical Dialogue about Art, reflects the movements in the field of art education toward a more transdisciplinary notion of visual culture and art theory. In the past, Art Criticism and Aesthetics were considered two of the four “disciplines of art education.” This emphasis began over twenty (20) years ago and has since been modified, adapted, and transformed to embrace a more transdisciplinary approach to art theory, which extends well beyond “four domains.” The revision of Art Education 640 reflects this change by focusing on art theory more generally, and its relationship to Pre-K-12 art education more specifically.

This course is about teaching art criticism to learners of all ages. In the course we will read about criticism, and practice talking and writing critically about art and artifacts from popular visual culture. Most importantly, we will learn to lead others in talking and writing about artifacts and the questions they raise.

The course is supplemented by a website where you will post your writings for your classmates to read. In class, we will engage in critical discussions about art, and teaching others to reflect on art. We will read, reflect, and write responses that we will post our on the course web site. You will plan, teach, and report on a criticism lesson with a group of your choice and with art of your choosing.

Assignments

Criticizing Art: Understanding the Contemporary

• For each chapter (6) of Criticizing Art, write two separate paragraphs, edit them, and post them on the 640 website in the appropriate places.

The first paragraph should be an accurate summary of what the chapter says.

In the second paragraph, quote one phrase or sentence from the chapter, and tell us how this idea might affect how and what you teach. The statement you quote may be any statement in the chapter, that is, by the author, a critic, an artist or someone else quoted by the author.

Always write in a word-processing program of your choice, spell-check and grammar-check, save a copy, and paste your comments in the 640 website form.

• Lesson Plan

On the basis of the material in any one of the six (1 of 6) chapters in Criticizing Art, invent one Lesson Plan to use with a group of learners. Use these headings to describe your brief Lesson Plan:
  Lesson title
  Lesson idea
  The group of learners
  The setting
  What I want the participants to learn
  Estimated time of the lesson
  List of artifacts I will use
  The activities
  How I will know what the participants have learned

Always write in a word-processing program of your choice, spell-check and grammar-check, save a copy, and paste your comments in the 640 website form next to the chapter to which you refer.

Talking about Student Art

• For each of the five (5) chapters select one idea in the chapter that you would like to try when you teach, and tell us why you want to try it.

Always write in a word-processing program of your choice, spell-check and grammar-check, save a copy, and paste your comments in the 640 website form.

Class Project

Select one of the three (1 of 3) assignments below, or do both and earn extra credit:

• Critical Discussion

Conduct a critical discussion outside of class with a group of six or more people of your choice, using artifacts of your choosing. Report on the discussion using these headings:
  Discussion title
  Discussion idea
  The group of learners
  The setting
  What I wanted the participants to learn
  Time the lesson took List of artifacts that I used
  The activity
  What the participants learned
  What I learned

Write your report, edit it, and paste it on the 640 website in the appropriate place. Your grade will be based on what you learned, not on how well or poorly the session went.

• Web-Page on Art Criticism
Construct on-line material for critical inquiry about artifacts for a specified group of learners of your choice.

Grades

25% One Lesson Plan for teaching criticism or aesthetics (Criticizing Art)
25% Six summaries and responses to Criticizing Art
25% Five “ideas to try” in Talking About Student Art
25% Critical Discussion and Report, or Web page design

Prompt and regular attendance is expected; “Incompletes” are discouraged; late assignments, unless excused, will be penalized by a full grade (from a B to a C, for example); all written assignments are to be edited before they are posted on the website.

If you lose interest in the class, or if you find what we are doing does not fit your needs, please come and see me and we will negotiate alternatives for you.

If you have learning disabilities or other challenges that might affect your performance in the course, please come and see me.

This course is about teaching art criticism and aesthetics to learners of all ages. In the course we will read about criticism and aesthetics, and practice talking and writing critically and philosophically about art. Most importantly, we will learn to lead others in talking and writing about art and the philosophical questions it raises.

The course is supplemented by a website where you will post your writings for your classmates to read. In class, we will engage in discussions of art criticism and aesthetics. Out of class we will read, reflect, and write responses that we will post on the course web site.
