Yana,

I write about the new course proposal, "Screening Minorities: Representations of the Other in Slavic Film," for which I want voice concurrence both as director of film studies and as a humanities professor teaching in an allied field. The course will be a wonderful addition to your offerings and complement well other classes currently available to film studies students. While I cannot speak definitively on this until our committee meets, I am very sure that the Interdisciplinary Film Studies Committee will choose to make this eligible as an elective in the major. We will have to confer to see if there are other requirements that it might satisfy; nonetheless, I foresee this as a class that many will want to incorporate into focus-area choices related to minorities, and women, in visual representation.

I am forwarding a copy of this to Kate Hallihan, who I'm sure will inform me if another form is needed from me. In the meantime, many thanks for your work in developing this wonderful opportunity for students.

All best,

Grading policies
Attendance and participation: 15%
Quizzes: 20% (10% each)
Clip analysis: 10%
Midterm: 25%
Final exam: 30%

Required Texts:
There are two required texts for this course: Understanding Movies, by Louis Giannetti and a course packet (with all readings in the syllabus pertaining to specific films and their cultural contexts) that will be sold out of the Foreign Languages Publications (198 Hagerty Hall). Understanding Movies can be found at SBX on High Street.
NOTE The bookstore has ordered the 10th edition of Understanding Movies and it retails at $65. For those who are not inclined to purchase such an expensive textbook, I would encourage them to find used copies and/or to visit online booksellers (bestbookbuys.com is a good one).

HERE'S THE CATCH Most campus-area bookstores will only buy back the 10th edition of this book.

Attendance & Participation – 15%
Your regular attendance and constructive participation will be a crucial component of this course; thus, attendance will be taken regularly. If you have more than one unexcused absences, you will receive a 3% deduction from your total course grade for each additional class you miss without excuse. No more than two absences can be excused with the proper documentation (i.e., doctor’s note). You will be responsible for viewing any missed film on your own. What do we mean by ‘professionalism’? Your attendance grade only reflects that you were present in class on a given day; your professionalism grade will reflect that you were (or were not) attentive during the screening and lecture/discussion (i.e., not sleeping, doing homework, reading the newspaper, playing games on one’s phone, etc.), that you were (or were not) well-prepared for that day’s lesson, and/or that you were willing and able to offer constructive observations/questions to that day’s lecture/discussion. In other words, your professionalism grade should sound very much like a typical participation grade. The following criteria are used in establishing participation grades:

A (15%): there is clear evidence of preparation, frequent voluntary participation, and significant contribution to class discussions. (Frequent participation means participation in 70% of class discussions during the quarter. Students make significant contribution to discussions when their answers relate to the topic and their arguments are based on class material).

B (10%): there is clear evidence of preparation and some participation (in 50% of class discussions during the quarter).

C (5%): there is evidence of preparation, but no voluntary participation. (In one-third of the discussions, I check students’ preparation by posing questions to individual students. If these students show evidence of preparation, but otherwise do not volunteer to participate, this amounts to a “C” for participation.)

Quiz on film terminology
The quiz will be in-class. Students will be asked to provide definitions for film terms and give examples from the films watched in class. A study guide will be passed out in class.

Quiz on East European cinema readings
The quiz will be in-class. Students will be asked to provide brief explanations of certain ideas and arguments pertaining to the East European films and their social and political context. A detailed study guide will be passed out in class.
Midterm and Final Examination
Both exams will be in-class and will consist of short answers questions and an essay question. The final will be cumulative. A detailed study guide will be passed out in class.

Late assignments
There will be a 1% deduction from the overall grade for each late assignment.

Academic Misconduct
Academic misconduct includes plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Any source (e.g., book, article, or website) that you use in your reviews, paper, and oral presentation must be properly mentioned, even if you are paraphrasing rather than quoting directly. University policy requires instructors to report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the Committee on Academic Misconduct for investigation. For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Disability Services
Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu/.

Welcome to Russian 401! In this course you will further develop skills in speaking, reading, writing and understanding Russian. In this course you will continue refining your speaking skills and will be able to carry on conversation on many topics from your daily life. You will continue developing reading and writing skills by reading increasingly more elaborate authentic texts and writing essays, and your listening skills will be cultivated by in-class interactions and listening to authentic Russian audio and video recordings. In addition to becoming a proficient speaker of Russian, we hope that you will become a skilled language learner and develop a curiosity about and love for Slavic cultures.

Foreign Language Course Goals/Rationale:

Foreign language courses develop students’ skills in communication across ethnic, cultural, ideological, and national boundaries, and help students develop an understanding of other cultures and patterns of thought.

Learning Objectives:

1. Students demonstrate basic skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing in a language other than their native language.
2. Students describe cultural differences in countries other than their own, and demonstrate an appreciation of these differences.

Books (available at SBX):

Recommended: English Grammar for Students of Russian by Edwina J. Cruise.

English-Russian, Russian-English Dictionary by Kenneth Katzner.

At the end of the quarter your final percentage will determine your final grade, as follows:
Attendance and participation:

Successful language learning requires frequent interaction, diligent preparation and active participation. Just as a basketball team, a violin student, or a serious runner must practice daily in order to excel, so must you in learning a language. For this reason, it is imperative that you attend class faithfully. Each day that you are absent will not only seriously affect your participation grade, but will also affect your performance on the tests, quizzes and homework. By missing class or coming to class unprepared, you are less likely to learn the material, will be unable to achieve your own language learning goals, and will deprive your classmates of opportunities to learn as well. Repeated and/or lengthy, unexcused absences will result in the filing of an absence report with your college office. Moreover, with each absence, your participation grade will be seriously affected. Class attendance and participation will be assessed using the scale on page 4 of this syllabus.

Homework:

You will have required written and/or oral homework nearly every night as a way of cementing what’s being done in class. You should plan to spend approximately two hours per day at home for every hour in class. If answers to the assignments are provided, you should correct your homework before turning them in. Regular work with the audio program will also help you greatly to understand, pronounce, and speak Russian.

Each homework assignment will be assessed using the rubric on page 5 of this syllabus.

Audio and video program that accompanies the textbook and the workbook is located online at www.prenhall.com/vputi.

Quizzes, Tests, and Final Exam:

Your grade in this course will be based primarily on your performance on assessments that test your skill in reading, writing, listening, and speaking Russian. Class participation and preparation will contribute significantly to your performance on these quizzes and tests.

During the quarter there will be two written tests. Test 1 (Chapters 1-2) is scheduled for Friday, January 30. Test 2 (Chapters 3-4) for Wednesday, February 25. The final exam is scheduled for __________ and will cover material in Chapters 5 and a part of Chapter 6. The date of the final exam is DETERMINED BY THE UNIVERSITY AND CANNOT BE CHANGED.

During the quarter you will also have three oral quizzes. These oral quizzes will be administered outside of class by your instructor. You will be graded on content, accuracy (pronunciation, grammar, and vocabulary), fluency, and comprehension. The first oral quiz will be administered on or around Thursday and Friday, January 22-23 and the second oral quiz will be administered on or around Thursday and Friday, January 19-20. The final oral quiz will take place on or around Thursday and Friday, March 12-13. Every effort will be made to accommodate your schedule. Please speak to your instructor if you have a conflict with the proposed oral exam times. If this schedule needs to be changed, changes will be announced in class.

Makeup work will be permitted only when the instructor is presented with acceptable documentation. Legitimate excused absences include the following: verifiable confining illness, serious verifiable family emergencies, subpoenas, jury duty, and military service. It is the student’s responsibility to notify his/her instructor of any excused absence as far in advance as possible. Work must be made up in a timely manner and before the next scheduled evaluation. Documentation of excused absence must be presented as soon as possible. No documentation will be accepted after the last day of regularly scheduled classes.

Compositions:

During the quarter you will write two compositions on the topic chosen from the list of approved topics (to be distributed in class). The topics of both essays will relate to our class discussions and will require expression of personal opinion on a certain subject. In order to maximize opportunities for you to improve your writing skills in Russian, you will write 2 drafts for each of the two compositions: the first draft and the final draft (please see the deadlines below).

All drafts are due by 5 P.M. on the dates indicated below in my mailbox located in the Slavic Department main office (Hagerty 400). Early submission is encouraged and appreciated. All drafts (first or final) submitted after this deadline are considered late and will receive partial credit. You will lose 5% of the final composition grade for each day that the draft is late without any exceptions.

The first draft of Composition 1 is due on Wednesday, January 21. This draft will be returned to you with my comments and corrections. You will then work to revise your original draft and will turn in the final draft of Composition 1 on Monday, February 2.

The first draft of Composition 2 is due on Monday, February 16, and the final draft of Composition 2 is due on Monday, March 2.

Only the second revised draft of each composition will receive a grade that will account for 5% of your final grade in this course. The specific instructions and requirements concerning draft revisions will be discussed in class. Both compositions will be graded for content, organization, accuracy (grammatical and lexical) and mechanics (spelling, capitalization, punctuation).

Credit by Exam:

If you are new to OSU this quarter and have studied Russian elsewhere, you may qualify for transfer credit or credit by examination. See your instructor immediately, for this opportunity may be lost to you after you've taken your first Russian course at OSU.

The 80% Minimum:

Language study is cumulative. If you don't know what's in Lesson #1, you really cannot go on to Lesson #2 (whereas, by contrast, you can open up a history text in the middle and start reading with relatively full comprehension). Thus, we consider 80% to be the minimum mastery level you should achieve to enable you to continue. (Less than that puts you in the "C" range or below; while passing, it is not a very solid foundation to build on.) So, if on a test you achieve less than 80%, you must see your teacher at least once, privately during office hours, to go over the mistakes you made on your test; this must be done prior to your taking the next test, or you will not be allowed to take it.

Study in Russia:

It's not too early for you to start thinking about study abroad in Russia. No matter what your major is, this can be an irreplaceable educational experience for you. Ask about it.

Thinking of Majoring or Minoring in Russian?

A Russian major or minor can be very useful for your future career, particularly when combined with a degree in education, business, math, or science. Students who complete Russian 104 are just a few courses shy of earning a Russian minor. Please contact Professor Daniel Collins at 292-6733 (or e-mail collins.232@osu.edu) for more information on major and minor programs in Russian.
Extra-Curricular Activities:

Students of Russian at Ohio State may take advantage of a wealth of extra-curricular activities sponsored by the Department and by other units at Ohio State, including lectures, informal conversation gatherings (Russian Table), films, Russian news broadcasts, parties and more. You may receive up to two points of extra credit added to your oral quiz grade and up to three points for each exam. Extra-curricular activities will be announced in class, but we also encourage you to sign up for the Slavic Center Monday e-mail list at cssees@osu.edu that provides a comprehensive list of all Slavic related events at OSU and beyond.

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu.

Questions

Please feel free to ask your instructor for clarification of anything on these pages, and of course at any time you are welcome to drop in on Maria Alley (338 Hagerty Hall, 292-6783, alley.27@osu.edu), who is the Director of the Slavic Department Language Programs.

Enjoy your Russian!

I. CLASS PARTICIPATION GRADING SCALE:

Daily Grades: These grades are meant to encourage steady, consistent effort. Class attendance and diligence in completing homework assignments are the most important components in studying Russian and the final grade reflects this. Experience shows us that by putting in consistent effort, most students end up with daily grades in the 90s, and learn a lot of Russian in the process. Class participation and preparation will be assessed everyday, and your final score will be calculated as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>0</th>
<th>1</th>
<th>2</th>
<th>3</th>
<th>4</th>
<th>5</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Is absent, unavailable for classroom participation</td>
<td>Not prepared for class, does not participate</td>
<td>Rarely prepared; rarely able to answer when called on, rarely volunteers</td>
<td>Sometimes prepared, but preparation inconsistent; answers when called on; uses Russian when required; willingly participated in class activities; stays on task during partner/group work</td>
<td>Usually prepared; answers when called on; willingly participates in class activities; stays on task during partner/group work; makes a conscious effort to use as much Russian as possible; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone)</td>
<td>High level of preparation; answers when called on; willingly participates in class activities; stays on task during partner/group work; uses Russian almost exclusively; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone); shares pertinent information; asks questions or volunteers information that is relevant to the class</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
II. WRITTEN HOMEWORK GRADING SCALE

Homework is assessed on a daily basis according to the following scale:

0 = Did not turn in
1 = Carelessly done with many mistakes; no evidence of use of answer key; open-ended activities carelessly prepared
3 = Some evidence of correction of exercises using answer key; some exercises done carefully, others hastily completed
5 = Carefully done; used answer key to correct mistakes; open-ended activities show thought and attention

Classroom Rules for Russian Language Classes

The following is a list of classroom rules that were devised so that all students may experience a comfortable and productive learning environment. Many of these rules are self-evident and already observed by most students. However, it is helpful for everyone in the group to understand explicitly what type of behavior is expected in Russian language classrooms. All students are expected to abide by these rules, and students will be held accountable for any infraction of these rules. Thank you for your cooperation, and please see your instructor if you have any questions or concerns.

1. It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.csu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

2. In order to promote Russian language learning, it is necessary to maximize your opportunities to speak and hear Russian. In the classroom, you are therefore expected to use Russian at all times.

3. In this course, you will be asked to express personal opinions and to talk and write about yourself, your family, and friends. If you prefer, you do not need to discuss or reveal any personal information; instead you may provide fictitious information. When you are being creative, you are expected to keep in mind the general purpose of the activity by using relevant vocabulary and expressions.

4. The use of profanity in the classroom (in any language) will not be tolerated.

5. Your instructor may ask that you change your seat in order to work in pairs or small groups. You may also be asked to move, if the instructor or your fellow classmates are unable to hear you. You should be prepared to change your seat at your instructor's request.

6. Chewing gum or eating is not acceptable in the language classroom. Soft drinks are allowed, as long they do not interfere with your ability to speak Russian. Note, however, that many of the rooms in university buildings prohibit food and drink. Please observe signs where posted.

7. From time to time, matters may come up that will require you to stop by your instructor's office. Every attempt will be made to find a mutually convenient time, but the responsibility is ultimately yours. You should be prepared to find some time to meet with your instructor during normal business hours.

Russian 401.51

Where to start

Welcome to Russian 401.51, the Individualized Instruction track for Intermediate Russian I!

Because much of the time and effort you will be devoting to this course is self-directed, it is important that you quickly become familiar with all the materials you will be using for the course. This introduction is meant to provide you an overview of all the components of the course as well as a general orientation to the Individualized Instruction program for Russian.

What is Russian Individualized Instruction (I.I.)?

The Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University offers you two ways to complete elementary and intermediate Russian courses. In addition to the traditional classroom track, the department offers the Russian Individualized Instruction (Russian I.I.) program. Four-skills courses include 101.51-104.51 (Elementary-Lower Intermediate), 401.51 and 402.51 (Intermediate), all of which are five-credit courses. There are also reading courses, 580.51 and 581.51, each worth 5 credit hours.

The goals of the individualized and classroom tracks are the same: you should achieve a certain degree of proficiency in the four basic language skills (speaking, listening, writing and reading). You will also learn about life and culture in the Russian-speaking world. Through your experience in the Russian I.I. program, you will acquire the tools you need to effectively learn the Russian language at more advanced levels – whether in a Russian-speaking environment or in a classroom setting.

“Individualized instruction” means that students work with the same type of materials as in the classroom track, but on their own schedule and at their own pace. This is accomplished with the aid of additional “self-access” instructional materials (e.g. – this Student Manual), as well as through consultation with the teaching staff in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center during scheduled appointments.

Russian I.I. is designed for the motivated student who either cannot schedule the regular classroom track or who prefers to work at a different pace (more quickly or more slowly) than the classroom track. The program is mastery-based, meaning that a student earns one credit at a time and must earn each credit with a grade of 80% or better. Students must be disciplined and motivated in order to be successful in Russian I.I. At the same time, the Russian I.I. experience has residual effects on a student’s learning and study strategies, such as learning to learn (time management, goal setting, motivation, self-assessment), learning about oneself as a learner, and taking responsibility for one’s own learning.

Although the goals of the classroom and individualized tracks are similar, there are some differences in the way the I.I. program helps you achieve these goals:

To purchase the optional materials, consult any reputable online bookstore or special orders departments of bookstores in your area. Orientation Session

The Russian I.I. Supervisor will schedule Orientation Sessions for new (and if necessary) returning students during the first week of the quarter. The schedule for these meetings will be posted in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center located in Hagerty Hall Room 120. The schedule will also be available through the I.I. Center front desk at 292-7060.

It is very important that you attend one of these orientation sessions for this course. Here you will be provided a number of important schedules, lists of deadlines, updated guidelines, and forms for the current quarter, as well as details concerning materials, e-mail addresses, websites, etc. which were not available at the time this orientation packet. Your personal Russian I.I. folder will be activated during this meeting and you will have an opportunity to ask any questions you might have. In addition, the first-week course roster will be checked to make sure that you have registered for the correct course and the appropriate number of credits.

Selecting Credit Hours

Since one of the key differences between the classroom track and the I.I. track in Russian language study is variable pacing, you have the option to choose the number of credit hours that best suit your schedule and goals. There is a credit minimum of two (2) credits per quarter (You may register for one credit hour only if that is the final credit needed to complete a course.) If this is your first course in I.I. and you are a full-time student, we recommend that you initially register for five (5) credit hours of 401.51.

Making Changes to Credit Hours

In the seventh (7th) week of the quarter, you will have the opportunity to adjust your registration to change the number of credits for which you are enrolled. This is referred to as “Contract Week.” During Contract Week you will be able to add or drop credits (to a minimum of 2), but will not be able to drop the course entirely (refer to Registrar’s deadlines for dropping a course). All students will be required to come into the I.I. Center during this week to discuss with an instructor his/her progress in the course and whether a credit change would be recommended (or, at the Russian I.I. supervisor's discretion, to at least contact the supervisor if no change is planned). Failure to complete the number of credit hours that you have “contracted” during Contract Week before the end of the quarter will result in an “E” on your permanent record, even if you return the next quarter to complete these units for a satisfactory grade. Graduating Seniors should pay special attention to end-of-quarter deadlines that apply exclusively to them. All students should carefully consult schedules and deadlines provided during the orientation session as these represent requirements for the particular quarter of enrollment.

Credits and Units

Unlike 101.51-104.51, there are no special “Extended Project” or “Grammar Review” units, so the correspondence of units and chapters is quite simple:

Individual Planning Schedule (IPS)

All Russian I.I. students set personal deadlines for completing each lesson by filling out an Individual Planning Schedule (IPS). One copy of the IPS is kept by the student, and one copy remains in the student's personal file. The IPS must be signed by the student and an I.I. instructor who has approved it. You will receive this form during your Orientation Session (If you do not require an orientation, you may pick up your two copies at the I.I. Center.) It can be filled out at the Orientation Session, turned in during your first appointment with an instructor, or left at the reception desk in the I.I. Center. The deadline for turning in the IPS will be specified at your Orientation Session (usually the deadline is the end of the second week of classes).

The purpose of the IPS is to help you plan your work for the quarter. When you complete a unit by the deadline that you have set for yourself, you will receive two bonus points for that unit; failure to meet your deadline will result in a one-point penalty.

As you create your IPS, please remember that the end of the quarter is an especially busy time in the I.I. Center. Students who put off their last lesson's appointments to the very end often find it difficult to find free appointment slots in the schedule.

Completing Work for a Unit

The Student Manual you will be using in this course is designed to take you through each unit, step-by-step, so that you understand:

1. The purpose of each unit – its communicative and linguistic goals, as well as its cultural and content themes;
2. The specific study and practice points that will help you achieve the learning and proficiency goals of the unit;
3. What you will be expected to know and be able to do by the end of the unit;

Each unit contains an overview of the learning goals for a particular chapter. Often, there will be additional commentary along with the specific assignments that will help you better understand the material or draw your attention to items of special interest. Unlike the 100- and 400-level courses in Russian I.I., there is no specific checklist, as you simply are expected to do all the work in each chapter of the manual and show it to an instructor. (Thus, there is no need to coordinate work among textbook, workbook, listening and video exercises, etc.)

Homework Sessions
Once you have completed all the assigned work for a chapter, you must make an appointment with an instructor in the I.I. Center for a homework-check session. Each session is ½ hour (30 minutes) in length (for details on scheduling appointments, see Scheduling Appointments, below).

Homework sessions give your instructor the opportunity to correct written homework assignments (e.g.—compositions, free writing) and to check that you are completing the assigned work. There are also exercises in the Manual that may have a variety of possible answers, and thus, no answer key. This is a good time to ask questions about any items with which you have had difficulty. It is recommended that before the sessions you highlight or note down the specific activities or language points that you wish to inquire about so that you can locate them easily. You will not receive credit for a homework session if you have not completed all of the written homework assignments for the lesson, or if the instructor determines that the work you have done is careless and/or incomplete.

Scheduling Appointments

You can schedule an appointment online at www.iischeduling.org. Appointments for conversation and homework sessions are for ½ hour (30 minutes). Students may not sign up for more than 3 consecutive 1/2 hour conversation or homework sessions per day during the quarter and for more than 2 1/2 hour conversation or homework sessions per day during the Last Week of classes. Students may also take only written (and oral) exams during Finals Week, i.e., they may not have homework sessions during that week.

Testing and Assessment

You must have all pre-testing unit requirements (i.e.—all homework checks) completed before taking tests.

Because Russian I.I. involves a mastery-based approach, students are required to pass each test with an 80% score or higher. If you do not score above 80%, you must re-take that component. You cannot re-take a test on the same day, so be sure to allow for this possibility as you create your Individual Planning Schedule (IPS, see above).

There are three variants of each regular unit test (Variant A, B, C). If you fail all three variants of a test, you will receive an “E” for the course.

Since all the exams for this course are reading/composition and do not require the participation of an instructor, you do not have to make an appointment with an instructor. You may take a test during the Individualized Instruction Learning Center hours of operation (consult current quarter’s schedule) even when the Russian I.I. office is closed. In order to obtain a copy of the written test, we ask that you select a date for your test and sign up at the front desk in the I.I. Center (Hagerty 120) in person or by phone (292-7060). Once a Russian I.I. instructor has checked your personal folder to determine whether all pre-testing requirements have been met (i.e.your homework checks), he/she will leave the appropriate test for you at the I.I. Center front desk. You can then take the test at any time on that day (or on a later day) in the I.I. Center testing room, provided the Center is open (consult current quarter hours of operation for the I.I. Center). If you fail to schedule your test in advance, you may drop by the I.I. Center while the Russian I.I. office is open on the hour or half-hour in order to request a test directly from the attending Russian I.I. instructor. Once you have completed a written test for a unit, it should be graded within 24 hours. The instructor who grades your written test will record in a log at the I.I.
Center front desk whether you have passed or failed (Note: You must wait until your next appointment to see your actual score and to see and discuss the test with an instructor).

Answer Keys
You are provided with answer keys for Student Manual exercises. For those exercises that involve compositions or free writing of any kind, you will be directed to show your work to an instructor. Access to answer keys will demand a certain level of discipline and maturity from you. Your choice of the individualized instruction track should already indicate that you possess the ability to manage your own learning and the motivation it takes to complete your work independently. The effectiveness of the materials you are working with depends on this self-imposed honor system. If you use the answer keys for anything but checking work you have completed on your own, you are only cheating yourself. This will become evident in testing situations and only result in unsatisfactory scores.

To use the answer keys to your advantage, consider adopting a system whereby you highlight those answers that you got wrong on your own along with notes about what you still do not fully understand. In this way, you can continually return to a troublesome exercise or concept and try it again, or eventually consult with an instructor should you not be successful in mastering it.

Disability Accommodation
Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu.

Academic Misconduct
It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Welcome to Russian 402! In this course you will further develop skills in speaking, reading, writing and understanding Russian. In this course you will continue refining your speaking skills and will be able to carry on conversation on many topics from your daily life. You will continue developing reading and writing skills by reading increasingly more elaborate authentic texts and writing essays, and your listening skills will be cultivated by in-class interactions and listening to authentic Russian audio and video recordings. In addition to becoming a proficient speaker of Russian, we hope that you will become a skilled language learner and develop a curiosity about and love for Slavic cultures.

Foreign Language Course Goals/Rationale:

Foreign language courses develop students’ skills in communication across ethnic, cultural, ideological, and national boundaries, and help students develop an understanding of other cultures and patterns of thought.

Learning Objectives:

3. Students demonstrate basic skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing in a language other than their native language.
4. Students describe cultural differences in countries other than their own, and demonstrate an appreciation of these differences.

Books (available at SBX):

Recommended: English Grammar for Students of Russian by Edwina J. Cruise.
English-Russian, Russian-English Dictionary by Kenneth Katzner.

Grading:

2 Written Tests 30% (15% each)
2 Oral Quizzes 10% (5% each)
2 Compositions 10% (5% each)
Final Oral Quiz 5%
Final exam 15%
Attendance and Participation 15%
Homework (written and oral) 15%

At the end of the quarter your final percentage will determine your final grade, as follows:

93 - 100  A  80 - 82  B-  68 - 69  D+
90 - 92  A-  78 - 79  C+  65 - 67  D
88 - 89  B+  73 - 77  C  64 & below  E
83 - 87  B  70 - 72  C-

Attendance and participation:

Successful language learning requires frequent interaction, diligent preparation and active participation. Just as a basketball team, a violin student, or a serious runner must practice daily in order to excel, so must you in learning a language. For this reason, it is imperative that you attend class faithfully. Each day that you are absent will not only seriously affect your participation grade, but will also affect your performance on the tests, quizzes and homework. By missing class or coming to class unprepared, you are less likely to learn the material, will be unable to achieve your own language learning goals, and will deprive your classmates of opportunities to learn as well. Repeated and/or lengthy, unexcused absences will result in the filing of an absence report with your college office. Moreover, with each absence, your participation grade will be seriously affected. Class attendance and participation will be assessed using the scale on page 4 of this syllabus.

Homework:

You will have required written and/or oral homework nearly every night as a way of cementing what’s being done in class. You should plan to spend approximately two hours per day at home for every hour in class. If answers to the assignments are provided, you should correct your homework before turning them in. Regular work with the audio program will also help you greatly to understand, pronounce, and speak Russian.

Each homework assignment will be assessed using the rubric on page 5 of this syllabus. Audio and video program that accompanies the textbook and the workbook is located online at www.prenhall.com/vputi.

Quizzes, Tests, and Final Exam:

Your grade in this course will be based primarily on your performance on assessments that test your skill in reading, writing, listening, and speaking Russian. Class participation and preparation will contribute significantly to your performance on these quizzes and tests.

During the quarter there will be two written tests. Test 1 (Chapters 7-8) is scheduled for Wednesday, April 22. Test 2 (Chapters 9-10) for Friday, May 15. The final exam is scheduled for ____________________________ and will cover material in Chapters 11 and 12. The date of the final exam is DETERMINED BY THE UNIVERSITY AND CANNOT BE CHANGED.

During the quarter you will also have three oral quizzes. These oral quizzes will be administered outside of class by your instructor. You will be graded on content, accuracy (pronunciation, grammar, and vocabulary), fluency, and comprehension. The first oral quiz will be administered on or around April 27-29 and the second oral quiz will be administered on or around May 23-24. The final quiz will be conducted during the finals week. Every effort will be made to accommodate your schedule. Please speak to your instructor if you have a conflict with the proposed oral exam times. If this schedule needs to be changed, changes will be announced in class.

Makeup work will be permitted only when the instructor is presented with acceptable documentation. Legitimate excused absences include the following: verifiable confining illness, serious verifiable family emergencies, subpoenas, jury duty, and military service. It is the student’s responsibility to notify his/her instructor of any excused absence as far in advance as possible. Work must be made up in a timely manner and before the next scheduled evaluation. Documentation of excused absence must be presented as soon as possible. No documentation will be accepted after the last day of regularly scheduled classes.

Compositions:
During the quarter you will write two compositions on the topic chosen from the list of approved topics (to be distributed in class). The topics of both essays will relate to our class discussions and will require expression of personal opinion on a certain subject. In order to maximize opportunities for you to improve your writing skills in Russian, you will write 2 drafts for each of the two compositions: the first draft and the final craft (please see the deadlines below).

All drafts are due by 5 P.M. on the dates indicated below in my mailbox located in the Slavic Department main office (Hagerty 400). Early submission is encouraged and appreciated. All drafts (first or final) submitted after this deadline are considered late and will receive partial credit. You will lose 5% of the final composition grade for each day that the draft is late without any exceptions.

The first draft of Composition 1 is due on Wednesday, January 21. This draft will be returned to you with my comments and corrections. You will then work to revise your original draft and will turn in the final draft of Composition 1 on Monday, February 2.

The first draft of Composition 2 is due on Monday, February 16, and the final draft of Composition 2 is due on Monday, March 2.

Only the second revised draft of each composition will receive a grade that will account for 5% of your final grade in this course. The specific instructions and requirements concerning draft revisions will be discussed in class. Both compositions will be graded for content, organization, accuracy (grammatical and lexical) and mechanics (spelling, capitalization, punctuation).

Credit by Exam:

If you are new to OSU this quarter and have studied Russian elsewhere, you may qualify for transfer credit or credit by examination. See your instructor immediately, for this opportunity may be lost to you after you’ve taken your first Russian course at OSU.

The 80% Minimum:

Language study is cumulative. If you don't know what's in Lesson #1, you really cannot go on to Lesson #2 (whereas, by contrast, you can open up a history text in the middle and start reading with relatively full comprehension). Thus, we consider 80% to be the minimum mastery level you should achieve to enable you to continue. (Less than that puts you in the "C" range or below; while passing, it is not a very solid foundation to build on.) So, if on a test you achieve less than 80%, you must see your teacher at least once, privately during office hours, to go over the mistakes you made on your test; this must be done prior to your taking the next test, or you will not be allowed to take it.

Study in Russia:

It's not too early for you to start thinking about study abroad in Russia. No matter what your major is, this can be an irreplaceable educational experience for you. Ask about it.

Thinking of Majoring or Minoring in Russian?

A Russian major or minor can be very useful for your future career, particularly when combined with a degree in education, business, math, or science. Students who complete Russian 104 are just a few courses shy of earning a Russian minor. Please contact Professor Daniel Collins at 292-6733 (or e-mail collins.232@osu.edu) for more information on major and minor programs in Russian.
Extra-Curricular Activities:

Students of Russian at Ohio State may take advantage of a wealth of extra-curricular activities sponsored by the Department and by other units at Ohio State, including lectures, informal conversation gatherings (Russian Table), films, Russian news broadcasts, parties and more. You may receive up to two points of extra credit added to your oral quiz grade and up to three points for each exam. Extra-curricular activities will be announced in class, but we also encourage you to sign up for the Slavic Center Monday e-mail list at execs@usu.edu that provides a comprehensive list of all Slavic related events at OSU and beyond.

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu. Questions

Please feel free to ask your instructor for clarification of anything on these pages, and of course at any time you are welcome to drop in on Maria Alley (338 Hagerty Hall, 292-6783, alley.27@osu.edu), who is the Director of the Slavic Department Language Programs.

II. CLASS PARTICIPATION GRADING SCALE:

Daily Grades: These grades are meant to encourage steady, consistent effort. Class attendance and diligence in completing homework assignments are the most important components in studying Russian and the final grade reflects this. Experience shows us that by putting in consistent effort, most students end up with daily grades in the 90s, and learn a lot of Russian in the process. Class participation and preparation will be assessed everyday, and your final score will be calculated as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Grade</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>0</td>
<td>Is absent, unavailable for classroom participation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Not prepared for class, does not participate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Rarely prepared; rarely able to answer when called on, rarely volunteers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Sometimes prepared, but preparation inconsistent; answers when called on; uses Russian when required; willingly participated in class activities; stays on task during partner/group work</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Usually prepared; answers when called on; willingly participates in class activities; stays on task during partner/group work; makes a conscious effort to use as much Russian as possible; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>High level of preparation; answers when called on; willingly participates in class activities; stays on task during partner/group work; uses Russian almost exclusively; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone); shares pertinent information; asks questions or volunteers information that is relevant to the class.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
II. WRITTEN HOMEWORK GRADING SCALE

Homework is assessed on a daily basis according to the following scale:

0 = Did not turn in
1 = Carelessly done with many mistakes; no evidence of use of answer key; open-ended activities carelessly prepared
3 = Some evidence of correction of exercises using answer key; some exercises done carefully, others hastily completed
5 = Carefully done; used answer key to correct mistakes; open-ended activities show thought and attention

Classroom Rules for Russian Language Classes

The following is a list of classroom rules that were devised so that all students may experience a comfortable and productive learning environment. Many of these rules are self-evident and already observed by most students. However, it is helpful for everyone in the group to understand explicitly what type of behavior is expected in Russian language classrooms. All students are expected to abide by these rules, and students will be held accountable for any infraction of these rules. Thank you for your cooperation, and please see your instructor if you have any questions or concerns.

8. It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

9. In order to promote Russian language learning, it is necessary to maximize your opportunities to speak and hear Russian. In the classroom, you are therefore expected to use Russian at all times.

10. In this course, you will be asked to express personal opinions and to talk and write about yourself, your family, and friends. If you prefer, you do not need to discuss or reveal any personal information; instead you may provide fictitious information. When you are being creative, you are expected to keep in mind the general purpose of the activity by using relevant vocabulary and expressions.

11. The use of profanity in the classroom (in any language) will not be tolerated.

12. Your instructor may ask that you change your seat in order to work in pairs or small groups. You may also be asked to move, if the instructor or your fellow classmates are unable to hear you. You should be prepared to change your seat at your instructor’s request.

13. Chewing gum or eating is not acceptable in the language classroom. Soft drinks are allowed, as long they do not interfere with your ability to speak Russian. Note, however, that many of the rooms in university buildings prohibit food and drink. Please observe signs where posted.

14. From time to time, matters may come up that will require you to stop by your instructor’s office. Every attempt will be made to find a mutually convenient time, but the responsibility is ultimately yours. You should be prepared to find some time to meet with your instructor during normal business hours.

Where to start

Welcome to Russian 402.51, the Individualized Instruction track for Intermediate Russian II!

Because much of the time and effort you will be devoting to this course is self-directed, it is important that you quickly become familiar with all the materials you will be using for the course. This introduction is meant to provide you an overview of all the components of the course as well as a general orientation to the Individualized Instruction program for Russian.

What is Russian Individualized Instruction (I.I.)?

The Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University offers you two ways to complete elementary and intermediate Russian courses. In addition to the traditional classroom track, the department offers the Russian Individualized Instruction (Russian I.I.) program. Four-skills courses include 101.51-104.51 (Elementary-Lower Intermediate), 401.51 and 402.51 (Intermediate), all of which are five-credit courses. There are also reading courses, 580.51 and 581.51, each worth 5 credit hours.

The goals of the individualized and classroom tracks are the same: you should achieve a certain degree of proficiency in the four basic language skills (speaking, listening, writing and reading). You will also learn about life and culture in the Russian-speaking world. Through your experience in the Russian I.I. program, you will acquire the tools you need to effectively learn the Russian language at more advanced levels – whether in a Russian-speaking environment or in a classroom setting.

“Individualized instruction” means that students work with the same type of materials as in the classroom track, but on their own schedule and at their own pace. This is accomplished with the aid of additional “self-access” instructional materials (e.g. – this Student Manual), as well as through consultation with the teaching staff in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center during scheduled appointments.

Russian I.I. is designed for the motivated student who either cannot schedule the regular classroom track or who prefers to work at a different pace (more quickly or more slowly) than the classroom track. The program is mastery-based, meaning that a student earns one credit at a time and must earn each credit with a grade of 80% or better. Students must be disciplined and motivated in order to be successful in Russian I.I. At the same time, the Russian I.I. experience has residual effects on a student’s learning and study strategies, such as learning to learn (time management, goal setting, motivation, self-assessment), learning about oneself as a learner, and taking responsibility for one’s own learning.

Although the goals of the classroom and individualized tracks are similar, there are some differences in the way the I.I. program helps you achieve these goals:

Materials – Manual & Dictionaries

Required:

Recommended:

English Grammar for Students of Russian by Edwina J. Cruise
English-Russian, Russian-English Dictionary by Kenneth Katzner.

Optional: We also suggest the following supplementary materials:

To purchase the optional materials, consult any reputable online bookstore or special orders departments of bookstores in your area. You may also wish to take advantage of the OSU Main Library, including its East European & Slavic Studies Reading Room (EES) on the Third Floor (Room 300), which maintains an impressive reference library.

Orientation Session

The Russian I.I. Supervisor will schedule Orientation Sessions for new (and if necessary) returning students during the first week of the quarter. The schedule for these meetings will be posted in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center located in Hagerty Hall Room 120. The schedule will also be available through the I.I. Center front desk at 292-7050.

It is very important that you attend one of these orientation sessions for this course. Here you will be provided a number of important schedules, lists of deadlines, updated guidelines, and forms for the current quarter, as well as details concerning materials, e-mail addresses, websites, etc. which were not available at the time this orientation packet. Your personal Russian I.I. folder will be activated during this meeting and you will have an opportunity to ask any questions you might have. In addition, the first-week course roster will be checked to make sure that you have registered for the correct course and the appropriate number of credits.

Selecting Credit Hours

Since one of the key differences between the classroom track and the I.I. track in Russian language study is variable pacing, you have the option to choose the number of credit hours that best suit your schedule and goals. There is a credit minimum of two (2) credits per quarter (You may register for one credit hour only if that is the final credit needed to complete a course.) If this is your first course in I.I. and you are a full-time student, we recommend that you initially register for five (5) credit hours of 402.51.

Making Changes to Credit Hours

In the seventh (7th) week of the quarter, you will have the opportunity to adjust your registration to change the number of credits for which you are enrolled. This is referred to as “Contract Week.” During Contract Week you will be able to add or drop credits (to a minimum of 2), but will not be able to drop the course entirely (refer to Registrar’s deadlines for dropping a course). All students will be required to come into the I.I. Center during this week to discuss with an instructor his/her progress in the course and whether a credit change would be recommended (or, at the Russian I.I. supervisor’s discretion, to at least contact the supervisor if no change is planned). Failure to complete the number of credit hours that you have “contracted” during Contract Week before the end of the quarter will result in an “E” on your permanent record, even if you return the next quarter to complete these units for a satisfactory grade. Graduating Seniors should pay special attention to end-of-quarter deadlines that apply exclusively to them. All students should carefully consult schedules and deadlines provided during the orientation session as these represent requirements for the particular quarter of enrollment.

Credits and Units

Unlike 101.51-104.51, there are no special “Extended Project” or “Grammar Review” units, so the correspondence of units and chapters is quite simple:

Individual Planning Schedule (IPS)

All Russian I.I. students set personal deadlines for completing each lesson by filling out an Individual Planning Schedule (IPS). One copy of the IPS is kept by the student, and one copy remains in the student’s personal file. The IPS must be signed by the student and an I.I. instructor who has approved it. You will receive this form during your Orientation Session (If you do not require an orientation, you may pick up your two copies at the I.I. Center.) It can be filled out at the Orientation Session, turned in during your first appointment with an instructor, or left at the reception desk in the I.I. Center. The deadline for turning in the IPS will be specified at your Orientation Session (usually the deadline is the end of the second week of classes).

The purpose of the IPS is to help you plan your work for the quarter. When you complete a unit by the deadline that you have set for yourself, you will receive two bonus point for that unit; failure to meet your deadline will result in a one-point penalty.

As you create your IPS, please remember that the end of the quarter is an especially busy time in the I.I. Center. Students who put off their last lesson’s appointments to the very end often find it difficult to find free appointment slots in the schedule.

Completing Work for a Unit

The Student Manual you will be using in this course is designed to take you through each unit, step-by-step, so that you understand:

1. The purpose of each unit – its communicative and linguistic goals, as well as its cultural and content themes;
2. The specific study and practice points that will help you achieve the learning and proficiency goals of the unit;
3. What you will be expected to know and be able to do by the end of the unit;

Each unit contains an overview of the learning goals for a particular chapter. Often, there will be additional commentary along with the specific assignments that will help you better understand the material or draw your attention to items of special interest. Unlike the 100- and 400-level courses in Russian I.I., there is no specific checklist, as you simply are expected to do all the work in each chapter of the manual and show it to an instructor. (Thus, there is no need to coordinate work among textbook, workbook, listening and video exercises, etc.)

Homework Sessions

Once you have completed all the assigned work for a chapter, you must make an appointment with an instructor in the I.I. Center for a homework-check session. Each session is ½ hour (30 minutes) in length (for details on scheduling appointments, see Scheduling Appointments, below).

Homework sessions give your instructor the opportunity to correct written homework assignments (e.g. – compositions, free writing) and to check that you are completing the assigned work. There are also exercises in the Manual that may have a variety of possible answers, and thus, no answer key. This is a good time to ask questions about any items with which you have had difficulty. It is recommended that before the sessions you highlight or note down the specific activities or language points that you wish to inquire about so that you can locate them easily. You will not receive credit for a homework session if you have not completed all of the written homework assignments for the lesson, or if the instructor determines that the work you have done is careless and/or incomplete.

Scheduling Appointments

You can schedule an appointment online at www.iischeduling.org. Appointments for conversation and homework sessions are for ½ hour (30 minutes). Students may not sign up for more than 3 consecutive 1/2 hour conversation or homework sessions per day during the quarter and for more than 2 1/2 hour conversation or homework sessions per day during the Last Week of classes. Students may also take only written (and oral) exams during Finals Week, i.e., they may not have homework sessions during that week.

Testing and Assessment

You must have all pre-testing unit requirements (i.e.— all homework checks) completed before taking tests.

Because Russian I.I. involves a mastery-based approach, students are required to pass each test with an 80% score or higher. If you do not score above 80%, you must re-take that component. You cannot re-take a test on the same day, so be sure to allow for this possibility as you create your Individual Planning Schedule (IPS, see above).

There are three variants of each regular unit test (Variant A, B, C). If you fail all three variants of a test, you will receive an “E” for the course.

Since all the exams for this course are reading/composition and do not require the participation of an instructor, you do not have to make an appointment with an instructor. You may take a test during the Individualized Instruction Learning Center hours of operation (consult current quarter’s schedule) even when the Russian I.I. office is closed. In order to obtain a copy of the written test, we ask that you select a date for your test and sign up at the front desk in the I.I. Center (Hagerty 120) in person or by phone (292-7060). Once a Russian I.I. instructor has checked your personal folder to determine whether all pre-testing requirements have been met (i.e.your homework checks), he/she will leave the appropriate test for you at the I.I. Center front desk. You can then take the test at any time on that day (or on a later day) in the I.I. Center testing room, provided the Center is open (consult current quarter hours of operation for the I.I. Center). If you fail to schedule your test in advance, you may drop by the I.I. Center while the Russian I.I. office is open on the hour or half-hour in order to request a test directly from the attending Russian I.I. instructor. Once you have completed a written test for a unit, it should be graded within 24 hours. The instructor who grades your written test will record in a log at the I.I. Center front desk whether you have passed or failed (Note: You must wait until your next appointment to see your actual score and to see and discuss the test with an instructor).

Answer Keys

You are provided with answer keys for Student Manual exercises. For those exercises that involve compositions or free writing of any kind, you will be directed to show your work to an instructor. Access to answer keys will demand a certain level of discipline and maturity from you. Your choice of the individualized instruction track should already indicate that you possess the ability to manage your own learning and the motivation it takes to complete your work independently. The effectiveness of the materials you are working with depends on this self-imposed honor system. If you use the answer keys for anything but checking work you have completed on your own, you are only cheating yourself. This will become evident in testing situations and only result in unsatisfactory scores.

To use the answer keys to your advantage, consider adopting a system whereby you highlight those answers that you got wrong on your own along with notes about what you still do not fully understand. In this way, you can continually return to a troublesome exercise or concept and try it again, or eventually consult with an instructor should you not be successful in mastering it.

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed, illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). Welcome to Russian 501! The objective of this course is to further develop skills in speaking, reading, writing and understanding Russian as well as grammatical competence in 3rd year Russian majors. A variety of contemporary topics dealing with Russian culture (family issues, various Russian traditions) will become the main topics of our discussion in class. Approximately three class meetings will be devoted to each topic and related language activities. The number of classes devoted to each topic as well as the number of topics themselves may vary. All classes will be conducted in Russian. In addition to becoming a proficient speaker of Russian, we hope that you will become a skilled language learner and develop a curiosity about and love for Slavic cultures.

Foreign Language Course Goals/Rationale:

Foreign language courses develop students’ skills in communication across ethnic, cultural, ideological, and national boundaries, and help students develop an understanding of other cultures and patterns of thought.

Learning Objectives:
1. Students demonstrate basic skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing in a language other than their native language.
2. Students describe cultural differences in countries other than their own, and demonstrate an appreciation of these differences.

Books (available at SBX):

Required: Мир русских (The World of Russians). Zita Dabars, George Morris & Tatiana Smirnova, 1996 and the accompanying workbook. In this course you will complete chapters 1 through 6 in this book.

Recommended: English Grammar for Students of Russian by Edwina J. Cruise.

English-Russian, Russian-English Dictionary by Kenneth Katzner.

Attendance and Participation:
Successful language learning requires frequent interaction, diligent preparation and active participation. Thus, it is essential that you attend class faithfully. Participation includes: being present for the entire class session, being prepared for that day’s discussion, being willing and able to offer constructive observations/questions to the lecture/discussion and paying attention to the contributions of other students and the instructor. If you are late for class, points will be taken off your participation grade. So, please, be respectful to your instructor and the other students and come on time!

Makeup work will be permitted only when the instructor is presented with acceptable documentation. Legitimate excused absences include the following: verifiable confining illness, serious verifiable family emergencies, subpoenas, jury duty, and military service. It is the student’s responsibility to notify his/her instructor of any excused absence as far in advance as possible. Work must be made up in a timely manner and before the next scheduled evaluation. Documentation of excused absence must be presented as soon as possible. No documentation will be accepted after the last day of regularly scheduled classes.

Homework:
You will have required written and/or oral homework nearly every night as a way of cementing what’s being done in class. You should plan to spend approximately two hours per day at home for every hour in class. If answers to the assignments are provided, you should correct your homework before turning them in. Regular work with the audio program will also help you greatly to understand, pronounce, and speak Russian.

In-class debates:
During the quarter there will be two in-class debates. During each debate every student will make a brief (5-7 min.) presentation in Russian on a topic chosen in advance dealing with some aspect of the general topic discussed in the class (see Tentative Course Schedule below for specific details). Students will also serve as the audience for the presentations of fellow classmates. Every presentation will be followed up by a brief follow-up discussion on the topic of the presentation facilitated by the presenter. Students are expected to follow the discussion (pay attention and be respectful to the contributions of other students and the instructor) and ask questions and offer comments on the topic of the presentation. Presenters will be graded on the content, organization, accuracy of their presentations, and the fluency with which they present. The In-class Debate Grading Rubric can be found on page 5 of this syllabus.

Home essays:
During the quarter students will write two home essays in Russian on the topic of their choice. All topics must be approved by the instructor in advance. The deadline for turning the essays in is the second day of every debate (see Tentative Course Schedule below for specific details). The essays turned in after the deadline will not receive credit unless proper documentation is provided. Essays will be graded on content, organization, vocabulary, language use, and mechanics. The Essay Grading Rubric can be found on page 6 of this syllabus.

Exams:
Both the midterm and the final exam will consist of four sections that test your skill in understanding (listening comprehension), reading, and writing (controlled and free) of Russian.

Code of Student Conduct:
It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu.

Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu.

Welcome to Russian 562! The main goal of this course is to introduce you to various aspects of modern Russian life as seen through mass media (printed mass media and Internet, radio and television) such as Russian government and politics, business and economics, and armed conflicts. By the end of the course you will be able to read/understand Russian mass media sources on different topics and in different genres, to give oral reports and participate in discussions on these topics, and to write summaries and reviews at the level appropriate for intermediate-advanced language skills.

Foreign Language Course Goals/Rationale:

Foreign language courses develop students’ skills in communication across ethnic, cultural, ideological, and national boundaries, and help students develop an understanding of other cultures and patterns of thought.

Learning Objectives:

5. Students demonstrate basic skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing in a language other than their native language.
6. Students describe cultural differences in countries other than their own, and demonstrate an appreciation of these differences.

Course Objectives:

- Achieve higher levels of language proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing
- Become accustomed to hearing authentic speech spoken by a wide variety of Russian speakers
- Expand active vocabulary on a wide range of topics
- Become acquainted with the official language of the Russian media
- Increase ability to express yourself accurately and comprehensively by reviewing and expanding the knowledge of the grammatical and lexical structure of Russian
- Develop awareness and appreciation of Russian culture and the differences between Russian culture and other cultures
- Develop critical thinking skills

Course Materials:

In this course we will be using the following textbook: News from Russia: Language, Life and the Russian media by Andrei Bogomolov and Marita Nummikoski published by Yale University Press in 2004 (ISBN 0-300-10437-5). The texts in this book are in Russian. The book is available at SBX (1806 North High St., (614) 291-9528 or Toll Free: 877-4-SBX-OSU). You are more than welcome to get the book elsewhere (e.g. directly at www.yalebooks.com or www.amazon.com). Additional materials prepared by the instructor will be distributed in class and posted on our course site in Carmen (www.carmen.osu.edu) after each class.

Attendance, participation, and professionalism:

Your attendance and active participation is extremely important for your own success and the success of your fellow classmates. The attendance, participation, and professionalism grade includes:

- arriving to class on time and staying until the end of the class period or until otherwise dismissed
- staying on task throughout the class period and in various class activities
- significantly contributing to all class activities/discussions including pair/group work
- being respectful to the instructor and the other students and any differences of opinion that may arise, and
- using Russian whenever feasible.

Your class attendance, participation, and professionalism grade for the class will be assigned according to the average of your daily grades. Your daily class participation will be assessed according to the following scale:

Absences will ONLY be excused with the proper documentation is provided (i.e., doctor’s note) without any exceptions.
Homework:

Homework will be assigned for each class meeting. Each homework assignment will be in Russian and will consist of two parts:

(1) a Listening Activity – LA1, LA2, etc. – to be available on our course site on Carmen in the form of a quiz (see directions below) and

(2) a Written Part – HW1, HW2, etc. – to be distributed in class and to be posted on our course site in the Content folder. The written part of the homework will consist of (various combinations of) reading, grammar, lexical, and free writing exercises. Most of the time these HW assignments will include textbook exercises.

To complete a Listening Activity:

1) Go to www.carmen.osu.edu
2) Log in using your OSU username (lastname.#) and password.
3) Under Spring 2007 click on RUSSIAN 562 (ALLEY) link.
4) Follow the Quizzes Available link on the left side panel.
5) Click on the listening activity you would like to complete (e.g. LA1, LA2, etc.)
6) Open a new window and follow the Content link of the same site.
7) Click on the Listening Activities folder and find the audio file corresponding to the activity you are going to complete (LA1_audio, LA2_audio, etc.)
8) Open and listen to the audio file and answer the questions in the online quiz.
9) Follow the directions in the quiz. Once you have completed it, your answers will either be graded automatically or will be sent to me via e-mail, in which case I will grade your work at a later time.

Please don’t hesitate to ask if you have any questions or run into any problems with these exercises.

All homework assignments are due IN CLASS. All work submitted after this time is considered late and will receive partial credit (-1 point for: each day it is late). Please note that forgetting homework at home, not being aware of an assignment or not understanding the task will not be considered a valid excuse for not submitting the work on time. All such issues should be resolved before the stated deadlines.

You are responsible for your own learning – do your homework each day and be prepared to turn it in. Make every effort to keep up - it is much easier than trying to catch up! Your homework will be evaluated according to the following scale:

0 = did not turn in
1 = carelessly done with many mistakes; open-ended activities carelessly prepared; no evidence of appropriate proofreading or revision
3 = some exercises done carefully, others hastily completed; limited evidence of appropriate proofreading and revision
5 = carefully done; open-ended activities show thought and attention; shows evidence of appropriate proofreading and revision; active lexical items and grammatical constructions are applied with an appropriate level of accuracy.

News Presentations:

During the quarter each of you will make two news presentations in Russian about a current event discussed in the media related to the general theme discussed in class at the time (e.g. Russian government). The choice of a specific event is entirely yours. Please note that these presentations can only be rescheduled with appropriate documentation and with advance notice! The requirements for these presentations are as follows:
CONTENT

(a) Your presentation has to be thorough in terms of content. You have to present the event/story providing sufficient detail (What happened? When did it happen? How long did it last for? Who was involved in/affected by this event and in what way?...) and appropriate background information (How often do events like this happen? When was the last time it happened? How is the current event different/similar? ...). You should have enough background information to be able to answer the questions of your classmates at the end of your presentation. Remember that in answering questions, it is not enough to say “I don’t know”; you should always state what YOU THINK the answer is and support it with some evidence (“I am not a specialist in economics, but it seems to me that the problem with the rising inflation will worsen, because...”).

(b) You should include an element of critical analysis into your presentation. Remember that it is not enough to simply state a fact or describe an event. Always think (and say!) how you interpret each fact, in what way it relates to what we (you personally and we as a class) already know and why you think this is important. It is also not enough to site several sources summarizing what “they say”. It is important that you express and are able to defend YOUR OWN OPINIONS.

LANGUAGE USE

Your presentation should be well prepared in terms of language use (grammar and vocabulary).

(a) You should first read and analyze your source(s), then write YOUR OWN narrative based on these sources paying very close attention to the grammar and vocabulary you are using (especially the “active” grammar and vocabulary we are using in class).

(b) You should leave enough time for proofreading and revision. Your presentation has to be clear to your audience and has to be at an appropriate level in terms of language use for the intermediate-advanced level. If your grammar is so messy, that it distracts from or confuses the message and disrupts communication, it will affect the quality of your presentation and your grade.

(c) You are responsible for all the language you decide to use. If you want to talk about hurricane-force winds, you should know how to say “hurricane-force” and “wind!” You should look up any words that are unfamiliar to you and be ready to explain any “new” words you are planning to use in your presentation. Moreover, you need to think in advance how the words you looked up will fit together in a comprehensible sentence. All this “background work” for the presentation (How do you say “hurricane”? What does this word mean?) should be done BEFORE the presentation.

ORGANIZATION

Your presentation should be well organized. It must have clear, logical sequencing and appropriate smooth transitions. It should include both main points and sufficient detail. Your presentation should also include an appropriate introduction and a conclusion.

PREPARATION/FLUENCY OF EXPRESSION

Your presentation should be well prepared. It should be presented, NOT read! The degree to which you are dependent on the written text or your notes will figure into your preparation grade.

You should be able to speak comfortably with little to no hesitation, restatements, reformulations and false starts. I suggest that once your narrative is ready, you practice giving the presentation at least 2-3 times before presenting it in class.
The criteria described above are summarized in the News Presentation Grading Rubric at the end of this syllabus.

During the quarter, you will not only make your own presentations, but will also serve as the audience for your classmates. You are expected to listen carefully to your classmates' presentations and to participate in the follow-up discussion by asking questions and making comments based on the content of the presentation. Your participation in the news presentations will account for 5% of your final grade in the course and will be assessed according to the following scale:

5 = excellent participation in the follow-up discussions: student volunteers questions and/or comments all/most of the time; student asked at least 5 questions during the quarter.

4 = good participation in the follow-up discussions: student often volunteers questions and/or comments; student asked at least 4 questions during the quarter.

3 = average participation in the follow-up discussions: student sometimes volunteers questions/or and comments; student asked at least 3 questions during the quarter.

2 = below average participation in the follow-up discussions: student rarely volunteers questions and/or comments all/most of the time; student asked at least 2 questions during the quarter.

1 = unsatisfactory participation in the follow-up discussions: student (almost) never volunteers questions and/or comments; student asked 1 or no questions during the quarter.

Exams:

There will be two written exams in this course: a midterm and a final. Each exam will consist of 4 parts: listening comprehension, reading comprehension, controlled writing, and a free writing component. Controlled Writing will cover the grammar and vocabulary discussed in class. Each of the four parts will be representative of the types of activities we will be doing in class. Both listening and reading components of the exams will be based on authentic materials.

Research project:

This quarter you will complete a research project on Russian media in Russian. This assignment will consist of 3 parts.

PART 1: Due IN CLASS on Wednesday, April 18th – 10% of the assignment grade

For this part of the assignment you will:

- Find THREE 1+ page articles (from a newspaper, magazine or Internet) in RUSSIAN on the topic of your choice (e.g. politics, economics, crime, education, armed conflicts, etc.)

- Read all three articles and write a 2-page essay in RUSSIAN analyzing the articles in the following way:

  (1) What is the main topic in all three articles?
  (2) What is the main idea in each article?
  (3) How are the articles similar?
  (4) How are the articles different?
  (5) Discuss at least one specific detail that struck you as interesting/surprising/weird, etc. in each article and EXPLAIN what makes it interesting/surprising/weird, etc.

  (6) (AS A SEPARATE ATTACHMENT) Provide 3 words/expressions from EACH article that you think would be useful to add to your active vocabulary. Write these words/expressions out, define them in Russian and provide their English translation, and compose a meaningful sentence using each of these words/expressions as an example of how you could use them in the future.

THE ORIGINAL ARTICLES SHOULD BE PRINTED OUT AND ATTACHED TO YOUR ESSAY!

PART 2: Due IN CLASS on Monday, May 14th – 5% of the assignment grade

For this part of the assignment you will:

- Find three 1+ page American media reports (from a newspaper, magazine or Internet) on the same topic (as in PART 1).
- Read all three articles and write a 2-page essay IN RUSSIAN analyzing the articles in the following way:

  (1) What is the main topic in all three articles?
  (2) What is the main idea in each article?
  (3) How are the articles similar?
  (4) How are the articles different?
  (5) Discuss at least one specific detail that struck you as interesting/surprising/weird, etc. in EACH article and EXPLAIN what makes it interesting/surprising/weird, etc.

THE ORIGINAL ARTICLES SHOULD BE PRINTED OUT AND ATTACHED TO YOUR ESSAY!

PART 3: Due AT THE FINAL EXAM on Wednesday, June 6th – 10% of the assignment grade

For this part of the assignment you will:

- Write a 2-page essay IN RUSSIAN comparing the two sets of articles (Russian and American) analyzing the articles in the following way:

  (1) How are the two sets of articles similar?
  (2) How are the two sets of articles different?
  (3) What is your opinion about the two sets of sources present the issue in question? Explain your answer.

PLEASE ATTACH ALL ORIGINAL ARTICLES AND PREVIOUS GRADED ESSAYS!

Your essays will be graded on content, organization, vocabulary, language use and mechanics (please see Addendum B for more details). All parts are due IN CLASS (or AT THE FINAL EXAM), any work submitted after this time is considered late and will receive partial credit (-5% of the assignment part grade for each day it is late).
Classroom expectations:

The following is a list of classroom expectations that were devised so that all students may experience a comfortable and productive learning environment. Thank you for your cooperation, and please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

1. It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

2. In order to promote Russian language learning, it is necessary to maximize your opportunities to speak and hear Russian. Therefore, you are expected to use Russian in the classroom at all times.

3. You are responsible for your academic progress and success. If you have doubts, ask the instructor to clarify them. If you are not sure about something, it is your duty to let the instructor know. If you miss a class, it is your task to find out what you have missed and catch up on the assignments.

I am at your service and willing to discuss and aspect of the course, any issues, and any concerns you have. I am available to you by appointment, by phone, and by e-mail. If you need to meet with me outside of my office, please contact me to arrange an appointment. You are responsible for your own academic success. As your instructor I will work with your special needs as best as I can, but if I don't know these needs, I can't help you.

4. In language classes, you are often asked to share personal information in small groups. If you don't feel comfortable divulging personal information to someone you don't know very well, make something up! As long as it is grammatical, makes sense, and is good-natured, no harm is done in being creative!

Rationale for changing credit number for Russian 580, 581 and 582

Russian 580, 581 and 582 courses have traditionally been offered through the Slavic Department’s Individualized Instruction (I.I.) program as a series of Reading Russian courses.

Each of these courses is currently a three credit hour course. Student materials for this course were developed by department faculty over 30 years ago and consisted of nine thematic units that consisted of several thematically related texts and accompanying language activities. Students are required to complete one unit per one credit hour.

In summer 2006 the Department’s Undergraduate Committee decided to update the course materials that had noticeably aged since their creation (most texts in these materials contained articles from Soviet press and were concerned with Soviet Union and its realia and contemporaries).

This materials development project was started at that time under the supervision of the Director of Language Programs. The updated materials are in the final stages of revision and will be ready for publication and use by students by Autumn quarter 2008.

At the same time, Russian 580, 581 and 582 are the only courses currently taught in the Department that are three credit courses, as opposed to the majority of our courses, that offer students five credit hours. The requested change from 3 to 5 credit hours for each of the three courses in this series would ensure the consistency between all course offerings in the department in terms of credits and will make the system of credit hour assignments more clear and transparent to the students.

The amount of work that students do will remain the same: one unit of reading materials will correspond to one credit hour. However, instead of 3 credit hours/units available to them for each course, students will have 5 credits available to them. Russian I.I. program has a special system in which each student decides for himself how many credit hours of a specific course they would like to take. So the proposed change will not impose on students the requirement to take all 5 credits of the course, but would rather make that option available to them, if they need it (for example, for graduation). At the same time, having more credit hours means having more thematic units for reading and thus language practice and vocabulary acquisition in a wider range of topics. As was mentioned above, all the reading materials for these courses have already been developed and will be ready for use by Autumn quarter 2008.

Russian 580.51

Where to start

Welcome to Russian 580.51, the Individualized Instruction track for Reading Russian I! In this course you will learn to read authentic and adapted Russian language texts on a variety of topics and in a variety of genres. You will expand your active and passive vocabulary in several topic areas and will learn to use various reading strategies (scanning, skimming, reading with full comprehension and others) effectively.

Because much of the time and effort you will be devoting to this course is self-directed, it is important that you quickly become familiar with all the materials you will be using for the course. This introduction is meant to provide you an overview of all the components of the course as well as a general orientation to the Individualized Instruction program for Russian.

What is Russian Individualized Instruction (I.I.)?

The Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University offers you two ways to complete elementary and intermediate Russian courses. In addition to the traditional classroom track, the department offers the Russian Individualized Instruction (Russian I.I.) program. Four-skills courses include 101.51-104.51 (Elementary-Lower Intermediate), 401.51 and 402.51 (Intermediate), all of which are five-credit courses. There are also reading courses, 580.51 and 581.51, each worth 5 credit hours.

The goals of the individualized and classroom tracks are the same: you should achieve a certain degree of proficiency in the four basic language skills (speaking, listening, writing and reading). You will also learn about life and culture in the Russian-speaking world. Through your experience in the Russian I.I. program, you will acquire the tools you need to effectively learn the Russian language at more advanced levels – whether in a Russian-speaking environment or in a classroom setting.

“Individualized instruction” means that students work with the same type of materials as in the classroom track, but on their own schedule and at their own pace. This is accomplished with the aid of additional “self-access” instructional materials (e.g. – this Student Manual), as well as through consultation with the teaching staff in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center during scheduled appointments.

Russian I.I. is designed for the motivated student who either cannot schedule the regular classroom track or who prefers to work at a different pace (more quickly or more slowly) than the classroom track. The program is mastery-based, meaning that a student earns one credit at a time and must earn each credit with a grade of 80% or better. Students must be disciplined and motivated in order to be successful in Russian I.I. At the same time, the Russian I.I. experience has residual effects on a student’s learning and study strategies, such as learning to learn (time management, goal setting, motivation, self-assessment), learning about oneself as a learner, and taking responsibility for one’s own learning.
Although the goals of the classroom and individualized tracks are similar, there are some differences in the way the I.I. program helps you achieve these goals:

Materials – Manual & Dictionaries

In this course you will be using the course manual which contains all materials related to the course (reading texts and assignments to them, and answer keys). You will also need a good, fairly large English-Russian, Russian-English dictionary for the level of reading and composition you are engaged in. We recommend the following dictionaries:

Optional: We also suggest the following supplementary materials:

To purchase the optional materials, consult any reputable online bookstore or special orders departments of bookstores in your area. You may also wish to take advantage of the OSU Main Library, including its East European & Slavic Studies Reading Room (EES) on the Third Floor (Room 300), which maintains an impressive reference library.
Orientation Session

The Russian I.I. Supervisor will schedule Orientation Sessions for new (and if necessary) returning students during the first week of the quarter. The schedule for these meetings will be posted in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center located in Hagerty Hall Room 120. The schedule will also be available through the I.I. Center front desk at 292-7060.

It is very important that you attend one of these orientation sessions for this course. Here you will be provided a number of important schedules, lists of deadlines, updated guidelines, and forms for the current quarter, as well as details concerning materials, e-mail addresses, websites, etc. which were not available at the time this orientation packet. Your personal Russian I.I. folder will be activated during this meeting and you will have an opportunity to ask any questions you might have. In addition, the first-week course roster will be checked to make sure that you have registered for the correct course and the appropriate number of credits.

Selecting Credit Hours

Since one of the key differences between the classroom track and the I.I. track in Russian language study is variable pacing, you have the option to choose the number of credit hours that best suit your schedule and goals. There is a credit minimum of two (2) credits per quarter (You may register for one credit hour only if that is the final credit needed to complete a course.) If this is your first course in I.I. and you are a full-time student, we recommend that you initially register for five (5) credit hours of 580.

Making Changes to Credit Hours

In the seventh (7th) week of the quarter, you will have the opportunity to adjust your registration to change the number of credits for which you are enrolled. This is referred to as “Contract Week.” During Contract Week you will be able to add or drop credits (to a minimum of 2), but will not be able to drop the course entirely (refer to Registrar’s deadlines for dropping a course). All students will be required to come into the I.I. Center during this week to discuss with an instructor his/her progress in the course and whether a credit change would be recommended (or, at the Russian I.I. supervisor’s discretion, to at least contact the supervisor if no change is planned). Failure to complete the number of credit hours that you have “contracted” during Contract Week before the end of the quarter will result in an “E” on your permanent record, even if you return the next quarter to complete these units for a satisfactory grade. Graduating Seniors should pay special attention to end-of-quarter deadlines that apply exclusively to them. All students should carefully consult schedules and deadlines provided during the orientation session as these represent requirements for the particular quarter of enrollment.

Credits and Units

Unlike 101.51-104.51, there are no special “Extended Project” or “Grammar Review” units, so the correspondence of units and and credit hours is quite simple:

Individual Planning Schedule (IPS)

All Russian I.I. students set personal deadlines for completing each lesson by filling out an Individual Planning Schedule (IPS). One copy of the IPS is kept by the student, and one copy remains in the student’s personal file. The IPS must be signed by the student and an I.I. instructor who has approved it. You will receive this form during your Orientation Session (If you do not require an orientation, you may pick up your two copies at the I.I. Center.) It can be filled out at the Orientation Session, turned in during your first appointment with an instructor, or left at the reception desk in the I.I. Center. The deadline for turning in the IPS will be specified at your Orientation Session (usually the deadline is the end of the second week of classes).

The purpose of the IPS is to help you plan your work for the quarter. When you complete a unit by the deadline that you have set for yourself, you will receive two bonus points for that unit; failure to meet your deadline will result in a one-point penalty.

As you create your IPS, please remember that the end of the quarter is an especially busy time in the I.I. Center. Students who put off their last lesson’s appointments to the very end often find it difficult to find free appointment slots in the schedule.

Completing Work for a Unit

The Student Manual you will be using in this course is designed to take you through each unit, step-by-step, so that you understand:

1. The purpose of each unit – its communicative and linguistic goals, as well as its cultural and content themes;
2. The specific study and practice points that will help you achieve the learning and proficiency goals of the unit;
3. What you will be expected to know and be able to do by the end of the unit;

Each unit contains an overview of the learning goals for a particular chapter. Often, there will be additional commentary along with the specific assignments that will help you better understand the material or draw your attention to items of special interest. Unlike the 100- and 400-level courses in Russian I.I., there is no specific checklist, as you simply are expected to do all the work in each chapter of the manual and show it to an instructor. (Thus, there is no need to coordinate work among textbook, workbook, listening and video exercises, etc.)

Homework Sessions

Once you have completed all the assigned work for a chapter, you must make an appointment with an instructor in the I.I. Center for a homework-check session. Each session is ½ hour (30 minutes) in length (for details on scheduling appointments, see Scheduling Appointments, below).

Homework sessions give your instructor the opportunity to correct written homework assignments (e.g. – compositions, free writing) and to check that you are completing the assigned work. There are also exercises in the Manual that may have a variety of possible answers, and thus, no answer key. This is a good time to ask questions about any items with which you have had difficulty. It is recommended that before the sessions you highlight or note down the specific activities or language points that you wish to inquire about so that you can locate them easily. You will not receive credit for a homework session if you have not completed all of the written homework assignments for the lesson, or if the instructor determines that the work you have done is careless and/or incomplete.

Scheduling Appointments

You can schedule an appointment online at www.iischeduling.org. Appointments for conversation and homework sessions are for ½ hour (30 minutes). Students may not sign up for more than 3 consecutive 1/2 hour homework sessions per day during the quarter and for more than 2 1/2 hour homework sessions per day during the Last Week of classes. Students may also take only written (and oral) exams during Finals Week, i.e., they may not have homework sessions during that week.

Testing and Assessment

You must have all pre-testing unit requirements (i.e.— all exercises for a specific Unit) completed before taking tests.

Because Russian I.I. involves a mastery-based approach, students are required to pass each test with an 80% score or higher. If you do not score above 80%, you must re-take that component. You cannot re-take a test on the same day, so be sure to allow for this possibility as you create your Individual Planning Schedule (IPS, see above). There are three variants of each regular unit test (Variant A, B, C). If you fail all three variants of a test, you will receive an “E” for the course.

Since all the exams for this course are reading/composition and do not require the participation of an instructor, you do not have to make an appointment with an instructor. You may take a test during the Individualized Instruction Learning Center hours of operation (consult current quarter’s schedule) even when the Russian I.I. office is closed. In order to obtain a copy of the written test, we ask that you select a date for your test and sign up at the front desk in the I.I. Center (Hagerty 120) in person or by phone (297-7060). Once a Russian I.I. instructor has checked your personal folder to determine whether all pre-testing requirements have been met (i.e. your homework checks), he/she will leave the appropriate test for you at the I.I. Center front desk. You can then take the test at any time on that day (or on a later day) in the I.I. Center testing room, provided the Center is open (consult current quarter hours of operation for the I.I. Center). If you fail to schedule your test in advance, you may drop by the I.I. Center while the Russian I.I. office is open on the hour or half-hour in order to request a test directly from the attending Russian I.I. instructor. Once you have completed a written test for a unit, it should be graded within 24 hours. The instructor who grades your written test will record in a log at the I.I.
Center front desk whether you have passed or failed (Note: You must wait until your next appointment to see your actual score and to see and discuss the test with an instructor).

Answer Keys

You are provided with answer keys for Student Manual exercises. For those exercises that involve compositions or free writing of any kind, you will be directed to show your work to an instructor. Access to answer keys will demand a certain level of discipline and maturity from you. Your choice of the individualized instruction track should already indicate that you possess the ability to manage your own learning and the motivation it takes to complete your work independently. The effectiveness of the materials you are working with depends on this self-imposed honor system. If you use the answer keys for anything but checking work you have completed on your own, you are only cheating yourself. This will become evident in testing situations and only result in unsatisfactory scores.

To use the answer keys to your advantage, consider adopting a system whereby you highlight those answers that you got wrong on your own along with notes about what you still do not fully understand. In this way, you can continually return to a troublesome exercise or concept and try it again, or eventually consult with an instructor should you not be successful in mastering it.

Russian 581.51

Where to start

Welcome to Russian 581.51, the Individualized Instruction track for Reading Russian II! In this course you will learn to read authentic and adapted Russian language texts on a variety of topics and in a variety of genres. You will expand your active and passive vocabulary in several topic areas and will learn to use various reading strategies (scanning, skimming, reading with full comprehension and others) effectively.

Because much of the time and effort you will be devoting to this course is self-directed, it is important that you quickly become familiar with all the materials you will be using for the course. This introduction is meant to provide you an overview of all the components of the course as well as a general orientation to the Individualized Instruction program for Russian.

What is Russian Individualized Instruction (I.I.)?

The Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University offers you two ways to complete elementary and intermediate Russian courses. In addition to the traditional classroom track, the department offers the Russian Individualized Instruction (Russian I.I.) program. Four-skills courses include 101.51-104.51 (Elementary-Lower Intermediate), 401.51 and 402.51 (Intermediate), all of which are five-credit courses. There are also reading courses, 580.51 and 581.51, each worth 5 credit hours.

The goals of the individualized and classroom tracks are the same: you should achieve a certain degree of proficiency in the four basic language skills (speaking, listening, writing and reading). You will also learn about life and culture in the Russian-speaking world. Through your experience in the Russian I.I. program, you will acquire the tools you need to effectively learn the Russian language at more advanced levels — whether in a Russian-speaking environment or in a classroom setting.

“Individualized instruction” means that students work with the same type of materials as in the classroom track, but on their own schedule and at their own pace. This is accomplished with the aid of additional “self-access” instructional materials (e.g. – this Student Manual), as well as through consultation with the teaching staff in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center during scheduled appointments.

Russian I.I. is designed for the motivated student who either cannot schedule the regular classroom track or who prefers to work at a different pace (more quickly or more slowly) than the classroom track. The program is mastery-based, meaning that a student earns one credit at a time and must earn each credit with a grade of 80% or better. Students must be disciplined and motivated in order to be successful in Russian I.I. At the same time, the Russian I.I. experience has residual effects on a student’s learning and study strategies, such as learning to learn (time management, goal setting, motivation, self-assessment), learning about oneself as a learner, and taking responsibility for one’s own learning.

Although the goals of the classroom and individualized tracks are similar, there are some differences in the way the I.I. program helps you achieve these goals:

Materials – Manual & Dictionaries

In this course you will be using the course manual which contains all materials related to the course (reading texts and assignments to them, and answer keys) You will also need a good, fairly large English-Russian, Russian-English dictionary for the level of reading and composition you are engaged in. We recommend the following dictionaries:

Optional: We also suggest the following supplementary materials:

To purchase the optional materials, consult any reputable online bookstore or special orders departments of bookstores in your area. You may also wish to take advantage of the OSU Main Library, including its East European & Slavic Studies Reading Room (EES) on the Third Floor (Room 300), which maintains an impressive reference library.
Orientation Session

The Russian I.I. Supervisor will schedule Orientation Sessions for new (and if necessary) returning students during the first week of the quarter. The schedule for these meetings will be posted in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center located in Hagerty Hall Room 120. The schedule will also be available through the I.I. Center front desk at 292-7060.

It is very important that you attend one of these orientation sessions for this course. Here you will be provided a number of important schedules, lists of deadlines, updated guidelines, and forms for the current quarter, as well as details concerning materials, e-mail addresses, websites, etc. which were not available at the time this orientation packet. Your personal Russian I.I. folder will be activated during this meeting and you will have an opportunity to ask any questions you might have. In addition, the first-week course roster will be checked to make sure that you have registered for the correct course and the appropriate number of credits.

Selecting Credit Hours

Since one of the key differences between the classroom track and the I.I. track in Russian language study is variable pacing, you have the option to choose the number of credit hours that best suit your schedule and goals. There is a credit minimum of two (2) credits per quarter (You may register for one credit hour only if that is the final credit needed to complete a course.) If this is your first course in I.I. and you are a full-time student, we recommend that you initially register for five (5) credit hours of 581.

Making Changes to Credit Hours

In the seventh (7th) week of the quarter, you will have the opportunity to adjust your registration to change the number of credits for which you are enrolled. This is referred to as “Contract Week.” During Contract Week you will be able to add or drop credits (to a minimum of 2), but will not be able to drop the course entirely (refer to Registrar’s deadlines for dropping a course). All students will be required to come into the I.I. Center during this week to discuss with an instructor his/her progress in the course and whether a credit change would be recommended (or, at the Russian I.I. supervisor’s discretion, to at least contact the supervisor if no change is planned). Failure to complete the number of credit hours that you have “contracted” during Contract Week before the end of the quarter will result in an “E” on your permanent record, even if you return the next quarter to complete these units for a satisfactory grade. Graduating Seniors should pay special attention to end-of-quarter deadlines that apply exclusively to them. All students should carefully consult schedules and deadlines provided during the orientation session as these represent requirements for the particular quarter of enrollment.

Credits and Units

Unlike 101.51-104.51, there are no special “Extended Project” or “Grammar Review” units, so the correspondence of units and and credit hours is quite simple:

Individual Planning Schedule (IPS)

All Russian I.I. students set personal deadlines for completing each lesson by filling out an Individual Planning Schedule (IPS). One copy of the IPS is kept by the student, and one copy remains in the student’s personal file. The IPS must be signed by the student and an I.I. instructor who has approved it. You will receive this form during your Orientation Session (If you do not require an orientation, you may pick up your two copies at the I.I. Center.) It can be filled out at the Orientation Session, turned in during your first appointment with an instructor, or left at the reception desk in the I.I. Center. The deadline for turning in the IPS will be specified at your Orientation Session (usually the deadline is the end of the second week of classes).

The purpose of the IPS is to help you plan your work for the quarter. When you complete a unit by the deadline that you have set for yourself, you will receive two bonus point for that unit; failure to meet your deadline will result in a one-point penalty.

As you create your IPS, please remember that the end of the quarter is an especially busy time in the I.I. Center. Students who put off their last lesson’s appointments to the very end often find it difficult to find free appointment slots in the schedule.

Completing Work for a Unit

The Student Manual you will be using in this course is designed to take you through each unit, step-by-step, so that you understand:

1. The purpose of each unit – its communicative and linguistic goals, as well as its cultural and content themes;
2. The specific study and practice points that will help you achieve the learning and proficiency goals of the unit;
3. What you will be expected to know and be able to do by the end of the unit;

Each unit contains an overview of the learning goals for a particular chapter. Often, there will be additional commentary along with the specific assignments that will help you better understand the material or draw your attention to items of special interest. Unlike the 100- and 400-level courses in Russian I.I., there is no specific checklist, as you simply are expected to do all the work in each chapter of the manual and show it to an instructor. (Thus, there is no need to coordinate work among textbook, workbook, listening and video exercises, etc.)

Homework Sessions
Once you have completed all the assigned work for a chapter, you must make an appointment with an instructor in the I.I. Center for a homework-check session. Each session is ½ hour (30 minutes) in length (for details on scheduling appointments, see Scheduling Appointments, below).

Homework sessions give your instructor the opportunity to correct written homework assignments (e.g. – compositions, free writing) and to check that you are completing the assigned work. There are also exercises in the Manual that may have a variety of possible answers, and thus, no answer key. This is a good time to ask questions about any items with which you have had difficulty. It is recommended that before the sessions you highlight or note down the specific activities or language points that you wish to inquire about so that you can locate them easily. You will not receive credit for a homework session if you have not completed all of the written homework assignments for the lesson, or if the instructor determines that the work you have done is careless and/or incomplete.

Scheduling Appointments

You can schedule an appointment online at www.iischeduling.org. Appointments for conversation and homework sessions are for ½ hour (30 minutes). Students may not sign up for more than 3 consecutive 1/2 hour homework sessions per day during the quarter and for more than 2 1/2 hour homework sessions per day during the Last Week of classes. Students may also take only written (and oral) exams during Finals Week, i.e., they may not have homework sessions during that week.

Testing and Assessment

You must have all pre-testing unit requirements (i.e.— all exercises for a specific Unit) completed before taking tests.

Because Russian I.I. involves a mastery-based approach, students are required to pass each test with an 80% score or higher. If you do not score above 80%, you must re-take that component. You cannot re-take a test on the same day, so be sure to allow for this possibility as you create your Individual Planning Schedule (IPS, see above). There are three variants of each regular unit test (Variant A, B, C). If you fail all three variants of a test, you will receive an “E” for the course.

Since all the exams for this course are reading/composition and do not require the participation of an instructor, you do not have to make an appointment with an instructor. You may take a test during the Individualized Instruction Learning Center hours of operation (consult current quarter’s schedule) even when the Russian I.I. office is closed. In order to obtain a copy of the written test, we ask that you select a date for your test and sign up at the front desk in the I.I. Center (Hagerty 120) in person or by phone (292-7060). Once a Russian I.I. instructor has checked your personal folder to determine whether all pre-testing requirements have been met (i.e. your homework checks), he/she will leave the appropriate test for you at the I.I. Center front desk. You can then take the test at any time on that day (or on a later day) in the I.I. Center testing room, provided the Center is open (consult current quarter hours of operation for the I.I. Center). If you fail to schedule your test in advance, you may drop by the I.I. Center while the Russian I.I. office is open on the hour or half-hour in order to request a test directly from the attending Russian I.I. instructor. Once you have completed a written test for a unit, it should be graded within 24 hours. The instructor who grades your written test will record in a log at the I.I. Center front desk whether you have passed or failed (Note: You must wait until your next appointment to see your actual score and to see and discuss the test with an instructor).

Answer Keys

You are provided with answer keys for Student Manual exercises. For those exercises that involve compositions or free writing of any kind, you will be directed to show your work to an instructor. Access to answer keys will demand a certain level of discipline and maturity from you. Your choice of the individualized instruction track should already indicate that you possess the ability to manage your own learning and the motivation it takes to complete your work independently. The effectiveness of the materials you are working with depends on this self-imposed honor system. If you use the answer keys for anything but checking work you have completed on your own, you are only cheating yourself. This will become evident in testing situations and only result in unsatisfactory scores.

To use the answer keys to your advantage, consider adopting a system whereby you highlight those answers that you got wrong on your own along with notes about what you still do not fully understand. In this way, you can continually return to a troublesome exercise or concept and try it again, or eventually consult with an instructor should you not be successful in mastering it.

Where to start

Welcome to Russian 582.51, the Individualized Instruction track for Russian Grammar Review! In this course you will work to consolidate the knowledge of structure of Russian that you have gained in previous Russian language courses. You will also focus on more advanced grammatical concepts and Russian syntax.

Because much of the time and effort you will be devoting to this course is self-directed, it is important that you quickly become familiar with all the materials you will be using for the course. This introduction is meant to provide you an overview of all the components of the course as well as a general orientation to the Individualized Instruction program for Russian.

What is Russian Individualized Instruction (I.I.)?

The Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University offers you two ways to complete elementary and intermediate Russian courses. In addition to the traditional classroom track, the department offers the Russian Individualized Instruction (Russian I.I.) program. Four-skills courses include 101.51-104.51 (Elementary-Lower Intermediate), 401.51 and 402.51 (Intermediate), all of which are five-credit courses. There are also reading courses, 580.51 and 581.51, each worth 5 credit hours.

The goals of the individualized and classroom tracks are the same: you should achieve a certain degree of proficiency in the four basic language skills (speaking, listening, writing and reading). You will also learn about life and culture in the Russian-speaking world. Through your experience in the Russian I.I. program, you will acquire the tools you need to effectively learn the Russian language at more advanced levels — whether in a Russian-speaking environment or in a classroom setting.

"Individualized instruction" means that students work with the same type of materials as in the classroom track, but on their own schedule and at their own pace. This is accomplished with the aid of additional "self-access" instructional materials (e.g. this Student Manual), as well as through consultation with the teaching staff in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center during scheduled appointments.

Russian I.I. is designed for the motivated student who either cannot schedule the regular classroom track or who prefers to work at a different pace (more quickly or more slowly) than the classroom track. The program is mastery-based, meaning that a student earns one credit at a time and must earn each credit with a grade of 80% or better. Students must be disciplined and motivated in order to be successful in Russian I.I. At the same time, the Russian I.I. experience has residual effects on a student's learning and study strategies, such as learning to learn (time management, goal setting, motivation, self-assessment), learning about oneself as a learner, and taking responsibility for one's own learning.

Although the goals of the classroom and individualized tracks are similar, there are some differences in the way the I.I. program helps you achieve these goals:

Materials – Manual & Dictionaries

In this course you will be using the course manual which contains all materials related to the course (reading texts and assignments to them, and answer keys). You will also need a good, fairly large English-Russian, Russian-English dictionary for the level of reading and composition you are engaged in. We recommend the following dictionaries:

Optional: We also suggest the following supplementary materials:

To purchase the optional materials, consult any reputable online bookstore or special orders departments of bookstores in your area. You may also wish to take advantage of the OSU Main Library, including its East European & Slavic Studies Reading Room (EES) on the Third Floor (Room 300), which maintains an impressive reference library.
Orientation Session

The Russian I.I. Supervisor will schedule Orientation Sessions for new (and if necessary) returning students during the first week of the quarter. The schedule for these meetings will be posted in the Individualized Instruction Learning Center located in Hagerty Hall Room 120. The schedule will also be available through the I.I. Center front desk at 292-7060.

It is very important that you attend one of these orientation sessions for this course. Here you will be provided a number of important schedules, lists of deadlines, updated guidelines, and forms for the current quarter, as well as details concerning materials, e-mail addresses, websites, etc. which were not available at the time this orientation packet. Your personal Russian I.I. folder will be activated during this meeting and you will have an opportunity to ask any questions you might have. In addition, the first-week course roster will be checked to make sure that you have registered for the correct course and the appropriate number of credits.

Selecting Credit Hours

Since one of the key differences between the classroom track and the I.I. track in Russian language study is variable pacing, you have the option to choose the number of credit hours that best suit your schedule and goals. There is a credit minimum of two (2) credits per quarter (You may register for one credit hour only if that is the final credit needed to complete a course.) If this is your first course in I.I. and you are a full-time student, we recommend that you initially register for five (5) credit hours of 582.51.

Making Changes to Credit Hours

In the seventh (7th) week of the quarter, you will have the opportunity to adjust your registration to change the number of credits for which you are enrolled. This is referred to as “Contract Week.” During Contract Week you will be able to add or drop credits (to a minimum of 2), but will not be able to drop the course entirely (refer to Registrar’s deadlines for dropping a course). All students will be required to come into the I.I. Center during this week to discuss with an instructor his/her progress in the course and whether a credit change would be recommended (or, at the Russian I.I. supervisor’s discretion, to at least contact the supervisor if no change is planned). Failure to complete the number of credit hours that you have “contracted” during Contract Week before the end of the quarter will result in an “E” on your permanent record, even if you return the next quarter to complete these units for a satisfactory grade. Graduating Seniors should pay special attention to end-of-quarter deadlines that apply exclusively to them. All students should carefully consult schedules and deadlines provided during the orientation session as these represent requirements for the particular quarter of enrollment.

Credits and Units

Unlike 101.51-104.51, there are no special “Extended Project” or “Grammar Review” units, so the correspondence of units and credit hours is quite simple:

Individual Planning Schedule (IPS)

All Russian I.I. students set personal deadlines for completing each lesson by filling out an Individual Planning Schedule (IPS). One copy of the IPS is kept by the student, and one copy remains in the student’s personal file. The IPS must be signed by the student and an I.I. instructor who has approved it. You will receive this form during your Orientation Session (If you do not require an orientation, you may pick up your two copies at the I.I. Center.) It can be filled out at the Orientation Session, turned in during your first appointment with an instructor, or left at the reception desk in the I.I. Center. The deadline for turning in the IPS will be specified at your Orientation Session (usually the deadline is the end of the second week of classes).

The purpose of the IPS is to help you plan your work for the quarter. When you complete a unit by the deadline that you have set for yourself, you will receive two bonus points for that unit; failure to meet your deadline will result in a one-point penalty.

As you create your IPS, please remember that the end of the quarter is an especially busy time in the I.I. Center. Students who put off their last lesson’s appointments to the very end often find it difficult to find free appointment slots in the schedule.

Completing Work for a Unit

The Student Manual you will be using in this course is designed to take you through each unit, step-by-step, so that you understand:

1. The purpose of each unit – its communicative and linguistic goals, as well as its cultural and content themes;
2. The specific study and practice points that will help you achieve the learning and proficiency goals of the unit;
3. What you will be expected to know and be able to do by the end of the unit;

Each unit contains an overview of the learning goals for a particular chapter. Often, there will be additional commentary along with the specific assignments that will help you better understand the material or draw your attention to items of special interest. Unlike the 100- and 400-level courses in Russian I.I., there is no specific checklist, as you simply are expected to do all the work in each chapter of the manual and show it to an instructor. (Thus, there is no need to coordinate work among textbook, workbook, listening and video exercises, etc.)

Homework Sessions

Once you have completed all the assigned work for a chapter, you must make an appointment with an instructor in the I.I. Center for a homework-check session. Each session is $\frac{1}{2}$ hour (30 minutes) in length (for details on scheduling appointments, see Scheduling Appointments, below).

Homework sessions give your instructor the opportunity to correct written homework assignments (e.g. – compositions, free writing) and to check that you are completing the assigned work. There are also exercises in the Manual that may have a variety of possible answers, and thus, no answer key. This is a good time to ask questions about any items with which you have had difficulty. It is recommended that before the sessions you highlight or note down the specific activities or language points that you wish to inquire about so that you can locate them easily. You will not receive credit for a homework session if you have not completed all of the written homework assignments for the lesson, or if the instructor determines that the work you have done is careless and/or incomplete.

Scheduling Appointments

You can schedule an appointment online at www.iischeduling.org. Appointments for conversation and homework sessions are for ½ hour (30 minutes). Students may not sign up for more than 3 consecutive 1/2 hour homework sessions per day during the quarter and for more than 2 1/2 hour homework sessions per day during the Last Week of classes. Students may also take only written (and oral) exams during Finals Week, i.e., they may not have homework sessions during that week.

Testing and Assessment

You must have all pre-testing unit requirements (i.e.— all exercises for a specific Unit) completed before taking tests.

Because Russian I.I. involves a mastery-based approach, students are required to pass each test with an 80% score or higher. If you do not score above 80%, you must re-take that component. You cannot re-take a test on the same day, so be sure to allow for this possibility as you create your Individual Planning Schedule (IPS, see above).

There are three variants of each regular unit test (Variant A, B, C). If you fail all three variants of a test, you will receive an “E” for the course.

Since all the exams for this course are reading/composition and do not require the participation of an instructor, you do not have to make an appointment with an instructor. You may take a test during the Individualized Instruction Learning Center hours of operation (consult current quarter’s schedule) even when the Russian I.I. office is closed. In order to obtain a copy of the written test, we ask that you select a date for your test and sign up at the front desk in the I.I. Center (Hagerty 120) in person or by phone (292-7060). Once a Russian I.I. instructor has checked your personal folder to determine whether all pre-testing requirements have been met (i.e.your homework checks), he/she will leave the appropriate test for you at the I.I. Center front desk. You can then take the test at any time on that day (or on a later day) in the I.I. Center testing room, provided the Center is open (consult current quarter hours of operation for the I.I. Center). If you fail to schedule your test in advance, you may drop by the I.I. Center while the Russian I.I. office is open on the hour or half-hour in order to request a test directly from the attending Russian I.I. instructor. Once you have completed a written test for a unit, it should be graded within 24 hours. The instructor who grades your written test will record in a log at the I.I. Center front desk whether you have passed or failed (Note: You must wait until your next appointment to see your actual score and to see and discuss the test with an instructor).

Answer Keys

You are provided with answer keys for Student Manual exercises. For those exercises that involve compositions or free writing of any kind, you will be directed to show your work to an instructor. Access to answer keys will demand a certain level of discipline and maturity from you. Your choice of the individualized instruction track should already indicate that you possess the ability to manage your own learning and the motivation it takes to complete your work independently. The effectiveness of the materials you are working with depends on this self-imposed honor system. If you use the answer keys for anything but checking work you have completed on your own, you are only cheating yourself. This will become evident in testing situations and only result in unsatisfactory scores.

To use the answer keys to your advantage, consider adopting a system whereby you highlight those answers that you got wrong on your own along with notes about what you still do not fully understand. In this way, you can continually return to a troublesome exercise or concept and try it again, or eventually consult with an instructor should you not be successful in mastering it.

Course Description:
Welcome to Russian 601! This course is the first in a series of 4th year Russian language courses and aims to further develop students' communicative competence in Russian by developing the four language skills (speaking, listening, reading, and writing). Class work is based on some of the best known Russian films from 1930s to the present as we look at the changes that occurred in the Russian society during that time as presented in Russian film. Class work involves film screenings, intensive discussion, various reading and writing assignments, student presentations. In this class we will also focus on more advanced grammatical concepts (verbal aspect, expressing motion in Russian), Russian syntax and lexicology. In addition, we will work on developing higher-level language skills such as describing, narrating, giving and supporting opinions, and hypothesizing. The course is taught in Russian.

Course Objectives:
- Achieve higher levels of language proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing
- Become accustomed to hearing authentic speech spoken by a wide variety of Russian speakers
- Expand active vocabulary on a wide range of topics
- Increase ability to express yourself accurately and comprehensively by reviewing and expanding the knowledge of the grammatical and lexical structure of Russian
- Develop awareness and appreciation of Russian culture and the changes that occurred in the Russian society from 1930s to the present
- Develop critical thinking skills

Materials:
Materials will be selected and prepared by the instructor and distributed in class. All materials will also be posted on our course page in Carmen after each class.

Grading:

Attendance, Participation and Professionalism 15%
Homework (written and oral) 15%
Film Presentation 10%
2 Exams 35% (@17.5% each)
Research Project 25% (20%-written part, 5%-class presentation)
Assessment

All test questions are designed to test students’ declarative knowledge of the grammatical and lexical structure of Russian language, to test their knowledge of various aspects of Russian culture, and to measure students’ proficiency in four language skills which are the main focus of this course: reading, listening, writing, and speaking. In addition, all class activities and homework assignments are designed and chosen in order to measure student progress in these areas. Student performance on these tasks and assignments is reflected in their attendance and participation and homework grade.

Procedures for Data Gathering

1) All students complete expected tests. Test results are analyzed by designated course instructors and GTA coordinator for evidence of attainment of the course objectives.

2) Each quarter students are randomly chosen to participate in an advisory Oral Proficiency Interview in Russian to measure their speaking proficiency in Russian independently of course content.

Attendance, participation, and professionalism:

Your attendance and active participation is extremely important for your own success and the success of your fellow classmates. The attendance, participation, and professionalism grade includes:

- arriving to class on time and staying until the end of the class period or: until otherwise dismissed
- staying on task throughout the class period and in various class activities
- significantly contributing to all class activities/discussions including pair/group work
- being respectful to the instructor and the other students and any differences of opinion that may arise, and
- using Russian whenever feasible.

Your class attendance, participation, and professionalism grade for the class will be assigned according to the average of your daily grades. Your daily class participation will be assessed according to the following scale:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>0</th>
<th>1</th>
<th>2</th>
<th>3</th>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 = excellent participation: high level of preparation; student answers when called on; willingly participates in class activities significantly contributing to all class activities; stays on task during partner/group work; uses Russian almost exclusively; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone); shares pertinent information; asks questions or volunteers information that is relevant to the class.</td>
<td></td>

<td></td>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Absences will ONLY be excused with the proper documentation as outlined by university policy (i.e., doctor’s note) without any exceptions.
Homework:

Homework will be assigned for each class meeting. All homework assignments are due IN CLASS. All work submitted after this time is considered late and will receive partial credit (-1 point for each day it is late). Please note that forgetting homework at home, not being aware of an assignment or not understanding the task will not be considered a valid excuse for not submitting the work on time. All such issues should be resolved before the stated deadlines.

You are responsible for your own learning – do your homework each day and be prepared to turn it in. Make every effort to keep up – it is much easier than trying to catch up! Your homework will be evaluated according to the following scale:

- 0 = did not turn in
- 1 = carelessly done with many mistakes; open-ended activities carelessly prepared; no evidence of appropriate proofreading or revision
- 3 = some exercises done carefully, others hastily completed; limited evidence of appropriate proofreading and revision
- 5 = carefully done; open-ended activities show thought and attention; shows evidence of appropriate proofreading and revision; active lexical items and grammatical constructions are applied with an appropriate level of accuracy.

Film Presentation:

During the quarter each student will make a 10-15 min. presentation in class on a feature film they watch outside of class. All films will be chosen from a list of approved films that will be distributed in class at a later time.

The requirements for these presentations are as follows:

CONTENT

(a) Your presentation has to be thorough in terms of content.

- Provide general information about the film (explain type of film, the main characters and the basic situation with some detail, but do not give away the ending! – keep the others in suspense!)
- Back up your presentation visually – you may want to show a short (2-3 min.) scene from the film to illustrate a point, or use a series of shots from the film or a character chart
- Explain how the film you saw relates to the topics we have been discussing in class (Does it present the same or different topics/issues? How are these topics/issues presented?)
- Finish by stating your personal opinion about the film and say whether you would recommend viewing the film and why

LANGUAGE USE

Your presentation should be well prepared in terms of language use (grammar and vocabulary). Your presentation has to be clear to your audience and has to be at an appropriate level in terms of language use for the intermediate-advanced level. If your grammar is so messy, that it distracts from or confuses the message and disrupts communication, it will affect the quality of your presentation and your grade. Keep in mind that you are responsible for all the language you decide to use. If you want to talk about slapstick comedy, you should know how to say “slapstick” and “comedy”! You should look up any words that are unfamiliar to you and be ready to explain any “new” words you are planning to use in your presentation. Moreover, you need to think in advance how the words you looked up will fit together in a comprehensible sentence. All this “background work” for the presentation (How do you say “slapstick”? What does this word mean?) should be done BEFORE the presentation.

ORGANIZATION
Your presentation should be well organized. It must have clear, logical sequencing and appropriate smooth transitions. It should include both main points and sufficient detail. Your presentation should also include an appropriate introduction and a conclusion.

PREPARATION/FLUENCY OF EXPRESSION

Your presentation should be well prepared. It should be presented, NOT read! The degree to which you are dependent on the written text or your notes will figure into your preparation grade.

You should be able to speak comfortably with little to no hesitation, restatements, reformulations and false starts. I recommend that once your narrative is ready, you practice giving the presentation at least 2-3 times before presenting it in class.

Exams:

There will be two exams in this course: a midterm and a final. Each exam will consist of 5 parts: listening comprehension, reading comprehension, controlled writing (grammar and vocabulary), free writing and an oral (speaking) component. Each of the five parts will be representative of the types of activities we will be doing in class.

Research Project:

The most important piece of work that you will create in this course is your research project and all other course components are meant to prepare and help you in your work on this project. For your final project you will pick one film for study outside of class from the list of approved films.

The research project includes 2 components: a writing component in the form of a paper (5+ pages, double spaced) and a speaking component (an oral presentation of the project to the class, followed by a question-answer session and a short discussion).

Your written paper should consist of the following parts:

1. General information about the film (explain type of film, the main characters and the basic situation with some detail)

2. Focus on an aspect of the film, one of the characters or a scene in the film and analyze it:

   a. First simply describe or narrate: Describe the aspect of the film you chose. Who is the character you chose and what is s/he like? What happens in the scene you chose?

   b. Then, analyze the aspect/character/scene you chose: Why is it significant? Why did you choose it? How do you interpret it? How does it contribute to your understanding of Russian culture? How does it relate to our classroom discussions on similar films/topics?

3. Finish with a general evaluation of the film: Did you like or not? Why? Would you recommend it for viewing? Why or why not?

Research projects will be presented in class during the last week of the quarter. The first draft of the research paper is due on November 8 in class. This draft will be returned to you with my comments and corrections and the final corrected draft of the research paper will be due at the beginning of the final exam scheduled for Monday, December 3, 1:30 to 3:18 pm in JR 291.

If you submit any draft (first or final) after the stated deadlines, I will subtract 5% for each day that the draft is late from the final score of the research project, without any exceptions.

Classroom expectations:
The following is a list of classroom expectations that were devised so that all students may experience a comfortable and productive learning environment. Thank you for your cooperation, and please see your instructor if you have any questions or concerns.

7. You are responsible for your academic progress and success. If you have doubts, ask the instructor to clarify them. If you are not sure about something, it is your duty to let the instructor know. If you miss a class, it is your task to find out what you have missed and catch up on the assignments.

8. In language classes, you are often asked to share personal information in small groups. Topics may include talking about your family, your interests, past activities, where you live, etc. If you don't feel comfortable divulging personal information to someone you don't know very well, make something up! We are not going to call your grandfather to see if he actually water-skis, has a mohawk, and plays the balalaika. As long as it is grammatical, makes sense, and is good-natured, no harm is done in being creative!

9. I am at your service and willing to discuss and aspect of the course, any issues, and any concerns you have. I am available to you by appointment, by phone, and by e-mail. If you need to meet with me outside of my office, please contact me to arrange an appointment. You are responsible for your own academic success. As your instructor I will work with your special needs as best as I can, but if I don't know these needs, I can't help you.

10. Please turn off all cell phones and pagers.

11. The use of obscene language (in any language) will not be tolerated.

12. In order to promote Russian language learning, it is necessary to maximize your opportunities to speak and hear Russian. Therefore, you are expected to use Russian in the classroom at all times.

13. Your instructor may ask that you change your seat in order to work in pairs or small groups. You may also be asked to move, if the instructor or your fellow classmates are unable to hear you. You should be prepared to change your seat at your instructor's request.

14. Chewing gum or eating is not acceptable in the language classroom. Drinks are allowed, as long they do not interfere with your ability to speak Russian.

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu.

Course Description:

Welcome to Russian 602! This course is the second in a series of 4th year Russian language courses and aims to further develop students' communicative competence in Russian by developing the four basic skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing and to further develop awareness and appreciation of Russian and Slavic cultures. In this class we will also focus on more advanced grammatical concepts, Russian syntax and lexicology. - Expand active vocabulary on a wide range of topics
- Review nominal and verbal systems of Russian
- Develop awareness and appreciation of Russian culture
- Develop critical thinking skills

Assessment

All test questions are designed to test students’ declarative knowledge of the grammatical and lexical structure of Russian language, to test their knowledge of various aspects of Russian culture, and to measure students’ proficiency in four language skills which are the main focus of this course: reading, listening, writing, and speaking. The research paper tests not only students’ language skills, but their ability to think critically and to express and support their personal opinion in the target language. In addition, all class activities and homework assignments are designed and chosen in order to measure student progress in these areas. Student performance on these tasks and assignments is reflected in their attendance and participation and homework grade.

Procedures for Data Gathering

1) All students complete expected tests and the research paper. Test results are analyzed by designated course instructors and GTA coordinator for evidence of attainment of the course objectives.

2) Each quarter students are randomly chosen to participate in an advisory Oral Proficiency Interview in Russian to measure their speaking proficiency in Russian independently of course content.

Attendance, participation, and professionalism:

This is an advanced language course and your attendance and active participation is extremely important for your own success and the success of your fellow classmates. The attendance, participation, and professionalism grade includes:

- arriving to class on time and staying until the end of the class period or until otherwise dismissed.
- staying on task throughout the class period and in various class activities
- significantly and voluntarily contributing to all class activities/discussions including pair/group work
- listening carefully to your classmates’ contributions and making every effort to include fellow classmates in various discussions and activities in order to practice real-life communication in Russian
- being respectful to the instructor and the other students and any differences of opinion that may arise, and
- using Russian whenever feasible.

Your class attendance, participation, and professionalism grade for the class will be assigned according to the average of your daily grades. Your daily class participation will be assessed according to the following scale:

\begin{array}{cccccc}
0 & 1 & 2 & 3 & 4 & 5 \\
\end{array}

0 = student is absent, unavailable for participation grade

1 = unsatisfactory participation: student is present, but does not participate, not prepared for class, does not stay on task, does not attend or respond to contributions of others, does not contribute to common discussions, does not use Russian when required

2 = below average participation: student rarely volunteers/contributes to class activities, rarely able to answer when called on; rarely stays on task; rarely attends or responds to contributions of others, rarely contributes to common discussions, rarely uses Russian when required

3 = average participation: student prepared, but preparation inconsistent; sometimes volunteers/contributes to class activities; sometimes answers when called on, sometimes attends or responds to contributions of others, sometimes contributes to common discussions, sometimes uses Russian when required

4 = good participation: student willingly participates in class activities most of the time; stays on task during partner/group work; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone), attends and responds to contributions of others and contributes to common discussions; makes a conscious effort to use as much Russian as possible

5 = excellent participation: high level of preparation; student answers when called on; willingly participates in class activities significantly contributing to all class activities; stays on task during partner/group work; uses Russian almost exclusively; volunteers answers to open questions (not directed at anyone); shares pertinent information; asks questions or volunteers information that is relevant to the class.
Absences will ONLY be excused with the proper documentation as outlined by university policy (i.e., doctor’s note) without any exceptions.

Homework:

All homework assignments are due IN CLASS. All work submitted after this time is considered late and will receive partial credit (-1 point for each day it is late). Please note that forgetting homework at home, not being aware of an assignment or not understanding the task will not be considered a valid excuse for not submitting the work on time. All such issues should be resolved before the stated deadlines.

You are responsible for your own learning – do your homework each day and be prepared to turn it in. Make every effort to keep up - it is much easier than trying to catch up! Your homework will be evaluated according to the following scale:

- 0 = did not turn in
- 1 = carelessly done with many mistakes; open-ended activities carelessly prepared; no evidence of appropriate proofreading or revision
- 3 = some exercises done carefully, others hastily completed; limited evidence of appropriate proofreading and revision
- 5 = carefully done; open-ended activities show thought and attention; shows evidence of appropriate proofreading and revision; active lexical items and grammatical constructions are applied with an appropriate level of accuracy.

Presentation:

During the quarter each student will make a presentation about an aspect of a general topic discussed in class at that time. The choice of the topic is yours; however, all topics must be approved by the instructor.

Exams:

There will be two written exams in this course: a midterm and a final. Each exam will consist of 4 parts: listening comprehension, reading comprehension, controlled writing, a free writing component. Controlled Writing will cover the grammar points discussed in class. Each of the four parts will be representative of the types of activities we will be doing in class.

Round Table Discussions:

These discussions will take place on the last day that we are discussing a certain major topic and are meant to bring together everything you have learned about a particular topic and to finalize some of the discussions. The roundtable discussions are led by students; you will be asking each other questions, answering them, defending your opinions, arguing, etc. You will be provided with a form to prepare for these discussions. You will be asked to come up with questions and issues you would like to discuss in advance and to actively participate in the discussions. Roundtable discussions will also be graded on a scale from 1 to 10 for preparation prior to the discussion and participation and professionalism during the
The overall average of your performance during all 4 round table discussions will count for 10% of your final grade in the course.

Research paper:

During the quarter you will work on a research project on a topic of your choice related to Russian culture. Your paper should be 5+ pages long, double spaced.

Your written paper should consist of the following parts:

(4) General introduction to the topic (What aspect/phänomenon did you choose and why? Why is it significant? What does it tell us about Russia and Russians?)

(5) Provide some background to the topic (What is generally said/believed about the topic? What differing views on this topic exist? Which point of view do you side with and why? Has the treatment/interpretation of topic changed over time? How? Why?)

(6) Offer your own interpretation (What does it mean to you? How does it contribute to your understanding of Russian culture? How does it relate to our classroom discussions on similar topics? How does it compare to your own culture?)

At the end of the quarter you will present the results of your research project in an informal round table discussion.

The first draft of the research paper is due on February 11 in class. This draft will be returned to you with my comments and corrections and the final corrected draft of the research paper will be due at the beginning of the final exam scheduled for Monday, March 10, 11:30-1:18 in CC304.
Please submit both drafts on time. If you submit any draft (first or final) after the stated deadlines, I will subtract 5% for each day that the draft is late from the final score of the research project, without any exceptions.

Classroom expectations:

The following is a list of classroom expectations that were devised so that all students may experience a comfortable and productive learning environment. Thank you for your cooperation, and please see your instructor if you have any questions or concerns.

15. In order to promote Russian language learning, it is necessary to maximize your opportunities to speak and hear Russian. Therefore, you are expected to use Russian in the classroom at all times.

16. You are responsible for your academic progress and success. If you have doubts, ask the instructor to clarify them. If you are not sure about something, it is your duty to let the instructor know.

   If you miss a class, it is your task to find out what you have missed and catch up on the assignments.

17. In language classes, you are often asked to share personal information in small groups. Topics may include talking about your family, your interests, past activities, where you live, etc. If you don't feel comfortable divulging personal information to someone you don't know very well, make something up! We are not going to call your grandfather to see if he actually water-skis, has a mohawk, and plays the balalaika. As long as it is grammatical, makes sense, and is good-natured, no harm is done in being creative!

18. I am at your service and willing to discuss and aspect of the course, any issues, and any concerns you have. I am available to you by appointment, by phone, and by e-mail. If you need to meet with me outside of my office, please contact me to arrange an appointment. You are responsible for your own academic success. As your instructor I will work with your special needs as best as I can, but if I don't know these needs, I can't help you.

19. Please turn off all cell phones and pagers.

20. The use of obscene language (in any language) will not be tolerated.

21. I may ask that you change your seat in order to work in pairs or small groups. You may also be asked to move, if the instructor or your fellow classmates are unable to hear you. You should be prepared to change your seat at your instructor's request.

22. Chewing gum or eating is not acceptable in the language classroom. Drinks are allowed, as long they do not interfere with your ability to speak Russian.

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).
Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu.
